The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Munoz
5944 01/02 Cloverly Ave
Temple City, CA 91780

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service. It is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Guillermo Smith
24165 Dawson Ct
Hayward, CA 94541

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nick Philbrick
164 Arundel Rd
Kennebunkport, ME 04046

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Dykema
5391 Holland Ave
Garden Grove, CA 92845

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael E. Matz
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 7360 27th Ave SW
Zip: 98126

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws

arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Smith Smith
2465 16th Ave N
St Petersburg, FL 33713

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian George
1200 Clement Hill Rd
Contoocook, NH 03229

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Menaka Padhi
2166+sandy+creek+dr
Frisco, TX 75034

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Shackelford
1172 Bittern St
San Diego, CA 92114

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Endersbe
508 W South St
Prairie City, IA 50228

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Mendiola
5100 S Delaware St Apt A112
Cherry Hl Vlg, CO 80110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Luisa Mendoza
7451 Nw 16th St Apt B307
Plantation, FL 33313

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Steve Mendoza
236 Boulder St
Nevada City, CA 95959

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Frank Mendoza Jr
9015 Rosehedge Dr
Pico Rivera, CA 90660

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
George Mendoza
1151 Washington St Apt C7
Middletown, CT 06457

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Theodora Menefee

1656 Herndon Farm Rd
Rock Hill, SC 29732

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
David Menendez
8403 Studebaker Dr
Pasco, WA 99301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Albert Jimenez
398+s+oregon+st
Chandler, AZ 85225

=====
From: Mengistu Workagegnehu
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mengistu Workagegnehu
530 Buckingham Rd Apt 1037
Richardson, Texas 75081

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Meninga
11215 Rosecrans Ave
Norwalk, CA 90650

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dennis Swearingen
Po Box 1168

Citrus Hts, CA 95611

=====
From: Me Notyou
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Me Notyou
123 S Rodeo Dr
Beverly Hills, California 90212

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jesus Pudido
767+e+phillips+blvd
Pomona, CA 91766

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Payton
500 E 7th St
Austin, TX 78701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micheal Patterson
1160 Saylor Dr Apt 2c
Columbus, IN 47201

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Pillion
84 Stoughton Rd
East Windsor, CT 06088

=====
From: Mercado Jeremy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercado Jeremy
303 S Maple Ave
Fresno, California 93702

=====
From: Mercedes Aguillon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Aguillon
5120 Mansard Dr
Michigan City, Indiana 46360

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mercedes Lee
3428+perching+rd
Saint+cloud, FL 34772

=====
From: Mercedes Billingsley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Billingsley
12106 Soika Ave
Cleveland, Ohio 44120

=====
From: Mercedes McCully
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercedes McCully
2042 NW 31st St
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73118

=====
From: Mercedes Reyes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Reyes
197 Marion Oaks Ln
Ocala, Florida 34473

=====
From: Mercedes Villarreal
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Villarreal
5200 SW 141st Ave Apt 50
Beaverton, Oregon 97005

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Nevarez
16132 W Riverview Dr
Post Falls, ID 83854

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mercedes Arbona
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Flovilla GA
Zip: 60216

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christopher Merck
1018+shiloh+cir
Easley, SC 29642

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cedric Johnson
8310 Glenwoods Ter
Riverdale, GA 30274

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sakae Brown
402 Blanco St
Duncanville, TX 75137

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Patrick Brantner
3659 Cavill Creek Rd
Barboursville, WV 25504

=====
From: Mercy Ahenkora
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mercy Ahenkora
9802 Forum Park Dr Apt 3250
Houston, Texas 77036

=====
From: mercy jaravata
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mercy jaravata
707 W Santa Ana St Apt 269
Anaheim, California 92805

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mercy Warren
1919 S Grand Blvd Apt 307
Saint Louis, MO 63104

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jerri Bost
410 E High St
Portland, IN 47371

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Endelson
9968 Mantova Dr
Lake Worth, FL 33467

=====
From: Meredith Colon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meredith Colon
6268 Susan Ln
Atlanta, Georgia 30340

=====
From: Meredith DeGironimo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meredith DeGironimo
21 Avenel St
Avenel, New Jersey 07001

=====
From: Meredith Heidbreder
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Meredith Heidbreder
810 W Newport Ave
Chicago, IL 60657-2300

=====
From: Meredith Hess
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissionersâ\200\223â\200\223â\200\223â\200\223

As a student and a parent I am appalled! Do not do this. Is this still America, home of the free, or the beginnings of home of the Corperation-ruled peons?

Meredith Hess

40324

=====
From: Meredith Karbowsky
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net Neutrality is Vital to Protect Women's & Girls' Voices Online

Already, major mediaâ\200\231s structural inequality continually leaves women out. The internet is one of the few places where independent media can thrive, providing a place for all women to tell our stories in our words on our own terms, uncensored and controlled by no one. The proposed FCC rules for a misleadingly-named â\200\234open Internetâ\200\235 would not only threaten our free and easy access to these ways of making ourselves heard, by extension they would also give ISPs power to control and censor our speech -- my speech -- online.

And the threat is twofold: we use the web to organize and fight for change outside of it. The internet allows us to spread messages farther than our feet could take us, make ideas louder than our voices can shout, and stand together on the same ground though we are miles apart. But our access to the internet and the tools it offers is provided by big cable companies. In the fight for media justice, we are at risk of the very people we fight against having authority over the tools we use to fight them. Silencing dissenting voices will be easier than ever -- and legal -- under these proposed rules.

Justice for women in its many forms is dependent on the ability to share information, ideas, and experiences freely. These proposed rules are a direct threat to my ability to be heard and to hear from the people I need to hear from. More importantly, they are a direct threat to women's voices the world over. It is for these reasons that I strongly urge you not to pass these rules, and instead adopt rules and regulations that classify the Internet as a telecommunications service, which will preserve a truly open and equal internet for everyone.

Meredith Karbowsky

Cincinnati, OH 45246

=====
From: Meredith Phelan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: New neutrality

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

I think people use the internet for a lot of different things-- work, school, research, media, social networking, shopping, banking, the list can go on endlessly. The internet is a portal to people and places everywhere, and it is also place where everyone can express themselves and make their voice heard. This is why I think it's so important to keep the internet as a public utility under common carrier rules. When corporations control the internet, they will control everyone's access to information. No one should control that. Please protect the freedom and neutrality of the internet for the sake of all people.

Sincerely,

Meredith Phelan

6109 Newport Ter
Frederick, MD 21701

=====
From: Meredith Stone
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meredith Stone
3420 85th Street
Jackson Heights, New York 11372

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Mergelsberg
1043 Stanley St
Phillipsburg, NJ 08865

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Graham
9759 S Winston Ave
Chicago, IL 60643

=====
From: Merilyn Ault
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merilyn Ault
25521 Lincoln Ave Spc 101
Hemet, California 92544

=====
From: Merilyn j Anderson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merilyn j Anderson

, 32549

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Lynn Smith
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 4121 Fairlake Ln Apt G
Zip: 23060

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christina Solis
810 Pennington St
Houston, TX 77022

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merke Brodie
1813+Reindeer+Pl
Bear, DE 19701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Thomas Merker
8+fordyce+manor+dr
Saint+louis, MO 63131

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Spiers
5661 Dogwood Cir
Myrtle Beach, SC 29588

=====
From: MERLE HERMANN
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

MERLE HERMANN
11807 PONDEROSA LN
KIOWA, CO 80117

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
MERLE HERMANN

=====
From: Merle Mitchell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merle Mitchell

, 61462

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Patricia Gansner
6811+treetop+ln
House+springs, MO 63051

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joseph Garrett
222+n+broad+st
Waynesboro, PA 17268

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merlinda Espiritu
3216 Le Pierre Dr
Crip Christi, TX 78414

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merlin Hileman
1324 E Castlevue Ave
Visalia, CA 93292

=====
From: Merlyn Gabriel Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissionersâ\200\223â\200\223â\200\223â\200\223

The internet is the worlds largest library, where everyone can share and obtain information. Restricting access to websites via blocking or slowing down amounts to a denial of the Freedom of Information. Leave the web as it is: free, diverse and open to all.

Merlyn Gabriel Miller

3085

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bill Gawlik
5310 S Mountain Dr
Emmaus, PA 18049

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brenda Amai
11 Norberta Way
Jax Bch, FL 32250

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merrie Harris
39 Flora
La Verkin, UT 84745

=====
From: Merrell Crumley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Disgruntled Citizen
3709 Tridens Trl
San Angelo, TX 76904

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Merna New
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: P.O. Box 172
Zip: 92391

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Merrick Wise
215 W Macarthur Blvd Apt 541
Oakland, CA 94611

=====
From: merri di dark
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

merridi dark
13 Jackson St
Williamsport, Indiana 47993

=====
From: Merrie Lane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merrie Lane
548 Coral Trace Blvd
Edgewater, Florida 32132

=====
From: Merrill Atwood
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merrill Atwood
1455 Barbara Rd
Redding, California 96003

=====
From: Merrilou Garcia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merrilou Garcia
2182 Posada Dr
Oxnard, California 93030

=====
From: Merrilyn Richardson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merrilyn Richardson
131 Bridgewater Circle
Midland, Texas 79707

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Larry Merriman
781+county+road+44100
Powderly, TX 75473

=====
From: Merritt Bailey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merritt Bailey
8016 Via Verona
Burbank, California 91504

=====

From: Merry Fuller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Merry Fuller
701 S. Dobson Rd. lot #448
Mesa, AZ 85202

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Merry Fuller

=====

From: Merry Lomeland
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Merry Lomeland
466 Woodhaven Dr
Vacaville, California 95687

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tammie Losik
3400 S Greeley Hwy Lot 186
Cheyenne, WY 82007

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Merts
1138 Sandalwood Cir
Niceville, FL 32578

=====
From: Mervat Agib
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mervat Agib
588 Burlington Dr
Tracy, California 95376

=====
From: Mervin Henry
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mervin Henry
3030Concord
Vidor, Texas 77662

=====
From: mervin mcbride
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mervin mcbride
17310 w. fillmore
holstein, Nebraska 68950

=====
From: Mervin Venuti
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mervin Venuti
1051 Tyler St
Salinas, California 93906

=====
From: Meryl Hankey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meryl Hankey
3100 Oden Rd
Alanson, Michigan 49706

=====
From: meryl.hankey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: RE: Do Not Regulate the Internet

What comments?

Sent via the Samsung Galaxy Note® 08.00, an AT&T 4G LTE tablet

----- Original message -----

From: OpenInternet <xxxx@xxxx.xxx>
Date: 09/12/2014 03:40 PM (GMT-06:00)
To: Meryl Hankey <xxxx@xxxx.xxx>
Subject: RE: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Thank you, we have received your comments and will review them.

=====

From: Mery Ramirez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mery Ramirez
PO Box 23
Darrrouzett, Texas 79024

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Tracy Molnar
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2728 McClay Valley Blvd, St Peters MO
Zip: 63376

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Savinon
102 Osprey Ct
Melbourne, FL 32940

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Shaun Major
11619+starfish+ave
Jacksonville, FL 32246

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Roxanne Hudiburg
929 Wood Valley Dr
Murfreesboro, TN 37130

=====
From: Meshia Hall
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility donâ\200\231t give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years â\200\223 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Donâ\200\231t ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meshia Hall
121 Pine Cone Rd NW
Milledgeville, Georgia 31061

=====
From: MeShunda Harrell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MeShunda Harrell
8861 Grove Park Dr Apt D
Surfside Beach, South Carolina 29575

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kevin Boyle
15505+williams+st+apt+n2

Tustin, CA 92780

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jacob Lakes
4711+w+kensington+ave
Tampa, FL 33629

=====
From: Messado Betsy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Messado Betsy
51 Hill St Apt 8L
Staten Island, New York 10304

=====
From: Meta Hola
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Meta Hola
208 W Huitt Ln
Euless, Texas 76040

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Justin Cochran
40 Cochran Way
Rydal, GA 30171

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tj Coniglio
325 Morgan Hill St
Simi Valley, CA 93065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Ryan T Wozny
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 104 n john street
Zip: 11758

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Ryan Wozny
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 104 n john street
Zip: 11758

Grimy hands off my fucking internet, that I pay for. Find another area to "attack" you grub sucking delinquents. The internet is a beautiful place for 90% of the people who use it properly, responsibly, and actually understand it. This Title II shit will not stand.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bryan Staar
2402 Campbell St
Rolling Mdws, IL 60008

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hartman

59 St Andrews Rd
Walden, NY 12586

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Armando Bohn
5811 W Mclellan Rd
Glendale, AZ 85301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dawn Lewis
324 Concord Ave
Berkeley Spgs, WV 25411

=====
From: metilda long
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

metilda long
3290 E Flint Rd
Attica, Indiana 47918

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lionel Metellus
267 Norway Ave
Trenton, NJ 08609

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Tom Eaker
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 10655 Chapel Hill Drive
Zip: 77099

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramiro Fernandez
1105+e+29th+st
Sn+bernrdo, CA 92404

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert M. Spears Jr
6317 N 49th Ave
Omaha, NE 68104

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chase Metzger
Po Box 623
Long Beach, WA 98631

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mil Pascua
150 Gateway Dr
Pacifica, CA 94044

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cornelius Armstrong
2832 N 12th St
Milwaukee, WI 53206

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Vaughn
1807 County Road 7500
Lubbock, TX 79423

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Conrad De La Cruz
1323 Bagely Way
San Jose, CA 95122

=====
From: Mevis Ito
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mevis Ito
118 S Sable Blvd Apt B201
Aurora, Colorado 80012

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: mark winogrocki
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 761 hunt st
Zip: 49331

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Freida Gee
1419 S Highcliff Pt
Homosassa, FL 34448

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ismael Mejia
1705 Carter Ln
Woodbridge, VA 22191

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Victoria Austin
210 S Church St
Hertford, NC 27944

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alberto Parra Jr.
46 Daffodil Ln
Staten Island, NY 10314

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Meyer
1325 Church St
Prtg De Sioux, MO 63373

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change - and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years - that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lucas Meyer
1456+Kaylann+Dr
Le+Claire, IA 52753

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Grant Meyer
2604+n+greenwood+st
La+grande, OR 97850

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ralph Meyers
8+rowland+pl
Westport, CT 06880

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lupe Meza
227 E 2nd Ave
La Habra, CA 90631

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rafael Vasquez
2001 Easy Ave
Long Beach, CA 90810

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Don Meziere
220 S Hale Ave
Escondido, CA 92029

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Faley
13 Primrose Ln # B
West Chester, PA 19380

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Carnney
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 7064 Dupre Rd
Zip: 55038

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition.

Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maryanne Degoede
1376 Phillips Ln Apt B
Sn Luis Obisp, CA 93401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lewis
1104 S Steen Ct
Spokane Vly, WA 99037

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Dodson
231 W Locust St
Cleona, PA 17042

=====
From: M Feneley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

M Feneley
PO Box 879074
Wasilla, Alaska 99687-9074

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Houser
673 Silva Ln
Gridley, CA 95948

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Finegan
245 Holder Ln Se
Salem, OR 97306

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: MARK FLATEN
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1301 SW 360TH ST
Zip: 98023

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Margie Fletcher
280 Daniels St
Rusk, TX 75785

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Â¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Mcke
2451 Sawmill St
Murfreesboro, TN 37128

=====
From: Mfon Pius
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mfon Pius
5139 W Glass Ln
Laveen, Arizona 85339

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Fowler
13 Rutgers Way
Hopatcong, NJ 07843

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Buchanan
215 Exchange Pl
Allen, TX 75013

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Frace
2213+old+york+rd
Bordentown, NJ 08505

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Frank Mandarino
17390 High St
Los Gatos, CA 95030

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Romey
2434+fallbrook+pl
Escondido, CA 92027

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark G Kemble
122 Judson Rd
La Porte, IN 46350

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Manuel Mason
715 Walnut Dr
Lake Elsinore, CA 92530

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchel Garispe
1181+E+millwood+dr
Dinuba, CA 93618

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Gram
4201 Diddle Dr
Bowling Green, KY 42101

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Garwood
22339 Cheraw Dr
Santa Clarita, CA 91350

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Gavin
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 439 w 2600 n
Zip: 84043

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie Bowser
92+kinley+dr
Ridgway, PA 15853

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Barbara Romano
33 Gristmill Ln
Halesite, NY 11743

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lisa Curiale
11104 Thrush Ave
Cleveland, OH 44111

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nicholas Leverette
5612 S Gramercy Pl
Los Angeles, CA 90062

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Gestring
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 849 Avon Rd
Zip: 38122

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Alan Marshall
3504 Brookmeade Dr
Rolling Mdws, IL 60008

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maggie Chaidez
24805 Walnut St Apt B
Newhall, CA 91321

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Guidry
203+lodge+dr
Lafayette, LA 70506

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Healy
32+nahanton+ave
Milton, MA 02186

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mukesh Gheewala
6871 Parker Ave
Downers Grove, IL 60516

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Gibbss
911 12th St Ne
Hickory, NC 28601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeffery Gilliam
313 Wellington Ct
Anderson, SC 29624

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Terrence Gilyard
4260 Canterbury Walk Dr
Duluth, GA 30097

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Gledhill
14198+post+st
Corona, CA 92880

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Å¢â\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Å¢â\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Margulies
2428 Creston Way
Hollywood, CA 90068

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Glenn
1305 Ridge Rd
Broadalbin, NY 12025

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Martin Lopez
161 E Mayra Dr
Nogales, AZ 85621

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jose Gonzalez
2325 W 6th St
Santa Ana, CA 92703

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marvin Martin
207 N Oklahoma Ave
Mangum, OK 73554

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Mitchell
8714 E Heatherwood Rd
Anaheim, CA 92808

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Gifford
po+box+3803
Edinburg, TX 78540

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Bo
33 Santa Barbara Dr
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Goiffon
4728 Sandra Ln
Saint Paul, MN 55110

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mario Gois
10500 W Main St
Turlock, CA 95380

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Gojkovich
2106+n+columbine+pl
Huachuca+city, AZ 85616

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mitchell Goldstein
121 Fairview Ave
East Meadow, NY 11554

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Gospodnetich
17 Friendly Ln
Novato, CA 94945

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers -â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Pirri
15 Larchwood Dr
Cumberland, RI 02864

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Gradoville
11851 Newport Ave
Omaha, NE 68164

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years -- that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Grant
1617 John F Kennedy Blvd Ste 1400
Philadelphia, PA 19103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Rybak
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1312 Margarett Ave. Towson MD.
Zip: 21286

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Matthew Gurley
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5695 Arctic Fox Dr Carterville IL 62918
Zip: 62918

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the Hands off the Net approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: M g Walters
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

M g Walters
11106 County Road 1300
Wolfforth, Texas 79382

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Jennifer R Higham
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 303 Marjorie Ann Drive
Zip: 26201

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hadzick
983 Walnut St
Freeland, PA 18224

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maggie Halsey
137 N 5th St
Union, OR 97883

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matt Hamel
67 Greenwood Ave
Warwick, RI 02886

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hahn
628+hilliard+rd
Elyria, OH 44035

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Hardaway
201 Cedar Cir
Spencerport, NY 14559

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kevin Hartley
930 Main St
Corinth, ME 04427

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Muhammad Hassan
271 Gifford Pl
Teaneck, NJ 07666

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Jill Hassi
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 610 Fairview Street, Eagle,
Zip: 53119

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mary Healy
po+box+81656
Fairbanks, AK 99708

=====
From: M. Heaton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

M. Heaton
228-101st ave ne
Lake Stevens, Washington 98258

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hedin
1681 E 1400 N
Logan, UT 84341

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Megan Hegwer
41+dewey+st
Arnolds+park, IA 51331

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Megan Held

6338 W Richmond Ave
Milwaukee, WI 53210

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Schabel
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 299E. Division St
Zip: 54935

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hendrix
1905 Park Place Blvd Apt 308
Bedford, TX 76021

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Henke
1417 Lake Breeze Rd
Oshkosh, WI 54904

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Henning
6125 City Lights Dr
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656

=====
From: m- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Herndon
1440 Chestnut Gap Rd
Blue Ridge, GA 30513

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hill
8980 E Speedway Blvd Unit 8101
Tucson, AZ 85710

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marie A Hill
1317+e+hale+st
Mesa, AZ 85203

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Marcia Hine
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 274 Washington st.
Zip: 15701

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Matthew Hintermaier
2471 Yost Blvd
Ann Arbor, MI 48104

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mehboob Mithaiwala
5525 Tularosa Dr
Fort Worth, TX 76137

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hays
1202 Carlsbad St
Spring Valley, CA 91977

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Solomon
930 E Curtis St
Winfield Park, NJ 07036

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myong Petura
11205 Paseo Montanoso Apt 13
San Diego, CA 92127

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Hudek
1515 Marilee Ct
Howe, TX 75459

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Timothy Cruz
5120+s+kenyon+st
Seattle, WA 98118

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
William Deason
14921 Ga Highway 23 S
Sardis, GA 30456

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Sove
19441+filmore+st
Southfield, MI 48075

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Maria Garcia
po+box+463
Antonito, CO 81120

=====
From: Miachelle hudgets
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miachelle hudsons
1530 Austin St
Klamath Falls, Oregon 97603

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Patrick Olimpio
11011 Lehigh Ave
Pacoima, CA 91331

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miada Henfield
703 E 37th St
Savannah, GA 31401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mariana Alvarez
48 Oakwood Cir
Elizabethtown, NC 28337

=====
From: Mia Gesele
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Gesele
12030 SW 77th Ter
Miami, Florida 33183

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cordella Phillips
557 E 21st St Apt 6g Apt
Brooklyn, NY 11226

=====
From: Mia Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Johnson
2426 77th Ave
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19150

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Christy Alvarez
3001 Sw 98th Ave
Miami, FL 33165

=====

From: Mia Morgan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Morgan
2722 S 137th East Ave
Tulsa, Oklahoma 74134

=====
From: Mia Morrison
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Morrison
1448 Irish Hill Rd
Lowell, Vermont 05847

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Mitchell
387 Tuscany Trce
Dallas, GA 30157

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mia Mccoy
78 Ashley Hall Plantation Rd
Charleston, SC 29407

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Antonio Rodriguez
Po Box 221
Dundee, FL 33838

=====
From: Mia Pantoja
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Pantoja
23428 Calle Pepita Rd
Corona, California 92883

=====
From: mia shane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mia shane
13712 Trenton Rd
Southgate, Michigan 48195
=====

From: mia shane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mia shane
13712 Trenton Rd
Southgate, Michigan 48195

=====
From: Mia Sharif
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Sharif
2 Shannon Ct
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87508

=====
From: Mia Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Smith
5011 Purdue Ave
Dallas, Texas 75209

=====
From: Mia Stanley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mia Stanley
1450 Riverrock Trl
Riverdale, Georgia 30296

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Burton Sr.
12 Summit Hts Apt C
Clarksville, TN 37040

=====
From: Mica Boroch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mica Boroch
1012 W Hawthorne St
Ontario, California 91762

=====
From: Micaela Chow
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micaela Chow
2746 Thomashire Trce
Marietta, Georgia 30066

=====
From: Micaela Gutierrez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micaela Gutierrez
7002 Windsong Way
Wingate, North Carolina 28174

=====
From: Micah Berry
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micah Berry
844 St Andrews Way
Bellingham, Washington 98229

=====

From: Micah Justus
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micah Justus
12 Debbie Ave
Muscatine, Iowa 52761

=====

From: Micah Mattice
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micah Mattice
529 E 750 N
Ogden, Utah 84404

=====
From: Micah Mingus
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micah Mingus
807A Ramble Ln
Austin, Texas 78745

=====
From: micah shannon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

micah shannon
3839 1st St NW
Lakeland, Florida 33810

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micah Deulen
4325 Ne 125th Pl Apt 233
Portland, OR 97230

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lala Ilagan
824 Highland Ave
Duarte, CA 91010

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joe Jones
662+Julia+St
St+Augustine, FL 32084

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Hopkins
4364 Arnold Ave
Clearlake, CA 95422

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on

Internet providers ã\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Graham
129 Paradise Marsh Cir
Brunswick, GA 31525

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hurt
1605 Flynn Ln Apt A
Mt Pleasant, MI 48858

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael James
351 Tyler St
Coalinga, CA 93210

=====
From: michael a. bimonte
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael a. bimonte
26 judith lane
east haven, CT 06512

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
michael a. bimonte

=====
From: Michael Acosta
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Acosta
11129 Voyager Cove Dr
El Paso, Texas 79936

=====
From: Michael Adamczyk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Adamczyk
1010 S McLellan St
Bay City, Michigan 48708

=====
From: Michael Adams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Adams
8909 Pagosa Dr.
Fort Worth, Texas 76116

=====
From: Michael Adams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Adams
W4018 Olympic Ave
Spokane, Washington 99205

=====
From: Michael Adcock
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Adcock
1561 Obie Adcock Rd
Smithville, Tennessee 37166

=====
From: Michael Aguon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Aguon
3137 Federalist Ln
Sacramento, California 95827

=====
From: Michaela Harris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michaela Harris
1480 E 77th St
Kansas City, Missouri 64131

=====

From: Michael Ahlman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Ahlman
8091 N Starr Loop
Hayden, ID 83835

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Ahlman

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kelly
70+carman+pl
Amityville, NY 11701

=====
From: Michael Albers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Albers
104 N Prairie St
Batavia, Illinois 60510

=====
From: Michael Allemang
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Allemang
5507rockdell ct
Huber heights, OH 45424

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current hands off regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called net neutrality rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing net neutrality and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Allemang

=====
From: Michael Allison
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Internet

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

I am tired of being treated like a 3rd class citizen while corporations who are not citizens are treated like royalty. We have no say in how things are done in our government unless we can afford to pay some government official more money than most of us have. A pay as you go government just doesn't work for the citizens of this country. Starting wars to please the Military Industrial Complex at the expense of the citizens is only one of the things pertaining to the massive amounts of money involved in the payoffs to this government. There internet should always be open and available to all, not another corporate giveaway.

Sincerely,

Michael Allison

1051 N. Opal
Mesa, AZ 85207

=====
From: Michael Amell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Amell

, 86406

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Vitolan
1256 Cleveland Heights Blvd
Cleveland, OH 44121

=====
From: Michael and Terry Poor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael and Terry Poor
13275 Peacock Dr.
Littleton, CO 80124

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael and Terry Poor

=====
From: Michael Antonelli
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldnâ\200\231t the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCCâ\200\231s attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers â\200\223 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCCâ\200\231s rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Antonelli
2612 E 128th St
Cleveland, Ohio 44120

=====
From: Michaela Otteman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michaela Otteman

, 68004

=====
From: michael Arel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael Arel
1102 brockway st.
saginaw, Michigan 48601

=====
From: Michael Armstrong
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Armstrong
311 Cypress Ave Apt B
Trenton, Ohio 45067

=====
From: michael arnold
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael arnold
7769 will hudson rd.
connelly spring's, North Carolina 28612

=====
From: Michael Ashbrook

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ashbrook

, Michigan 49038

=====
From: Michael Ashbrook
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ashbrook
5235 Weatherly
Coloma, Michigan 49038

=====
From: Michael Atherton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Atherton
1175 State Route 1028
Kittanning, Pennsylvania 16201

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Tilley
10020 W Horse Mesa Trl
Tucson, AZ 85743

=====
From: Michael Avance
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Avance
2020 W Craig Rd Ste 306
North Las Vegas, Nevada 89032

=====
From: Michael Bais
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bais
8012 New Jersey Ave
Kansas City, Kansas 66112

=====
From: Michael Baker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Baker
14145 N Santa Rosa Ave
Maricopa, Arizona 85138

=====

From: Michael Banks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Banks
4101 Hitchcock Dr
Killeen, Texas 76549

=====
From: Michael Barone
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Barone
2130 Heatherfield Ave
Columbus, Ohio 43235

=====
From: Michael Bartman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bartman

Berlin, Wisconsin 54923

=====
From: Michael Bates
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bates
2711 E 2017 Rd
Hugo, Oklahoma 74743

=====
From: michael baynard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael baynard
302 Ellicott Dr
Chester, Maryland 21619

=====
From: Michael Bazdresch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Bazdresch
3512 Tennessee Ave
Saint Louis, MO 63118

=====
From: Michael Beato
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Beato

, 08071

=====
From: Michael Beauvais
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Beauvais
448 Penn Ln
Brandon, Mississippi 39047

=====
From: Michael Beckman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Beckman
2677 Centinela Ave Unit 201
Santa Monica, CA 90405-3144

=====
From: michael belaj
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael belaj
6634 scotts lane
cambridge, Ohio 43725

=====
From: Michael Benafield
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a â\200\234public utilityâ\200\235 and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Benafield
1500 Lakewood Ave Apt 201
Modesto, California 95355

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Bender
4561 Abilene St
Denver, CO 80239

=====
From: Michael Benjamin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Benjamin
200 Georgia King Vlg Apt 16E
Newark, New Jersey 07107

=====
From: michael Benscoter
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael Benscoter
4695 Pacific St Spc 12
Rocklin, California 95677

=====
From: michael bevins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael bevins
1975 Willow Run Rd
Grove City, Ohio 43123

=====
From: Michael Bihary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bihary
2 Carnegie Dr
Farmingville, New York 11738

=====
From: Michael Bishop
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bishop
1000 Race Track Rd
Bentley , Louisiana 71407

=====
From: Michael Bishop
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bishop
8429 W Keefe Ave
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53222

=====
From: Michael Blaker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Blaker

po box 07
Aberdeen, ID 83210

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Blaker

From: Michael Blalock
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Blalock
3811 S Gail
Monahans, TX 79756

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called
net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Blalock

=====
From: Michael B Mc Sherry
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

The government rapes Americans every day with unknow taxes. You do not own or have the right to control a free network.
Michael B. Mc Sherry

=====
From: michael b neuens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael b neuens
17547 dutton rd
gregory, Michigan 48137

=====
From: Michael Booker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Booker
8135 Highway 141 S
Jonesboro, Arkansas 72401

=====
From: Michael Bowman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bowman
518 Gould St
La Crosse, Wisconsin 54603

=====
From: Michael Brady
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Brady
4 Susan Road
Brewster, New York 10509

=====
From: Michael Brady
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

My name is Michael Treadwell. I live on a fixed income as do many in this nation. I am 59 years old and in the course of my life, I have witnessed more and more the special interest gain and the individual LOSE. This country was imbued with principals and ideals given to individual personal freedoms. PLEASE do not take yet more away so that a very select few in this nation, who are already too rich, get richer and the poorer, such as myself, are penalized for not having the expendable wealth. The internet is TOO important a tool to be manipulated by money interests. I have learned 03 musical instruments through free on line tutorials. Be responsible to ALL citizens in this decision. PLEASE.

=====
From: Michael Bramer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bramer
1544 County Rd 315
Green Cove Springs, Florida 32043

=====
From: Michael Branson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Please keep the Internet OPEN and EQUAL

Dear Sirs:

I am writing to add my voice to the many millions of Americans who want to keep Internet access OPEN and EQUAL for everyone. If "fast" and "slow" lanes of Internet traffic are allowed, many web-sites will become unavailable to the people who need and want to use them. Big corporations will be able to buy a larger share of usage, while smaller businesses will be pushed aside and made difficult to reach. Web-sites that are not business oriented will be practically impossible to reach at all.

Please keep the Internet the way it has been since the beginning of its creation.

Thank you very much for taking my opinion into account.

Sincerely,

Michael Branson
8040 Hawthorne Dr
Sedalia, MO 65301

=====
From: Michael Brey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Brey
2210 Winter Haven Rd.
Fallbrook, CA 92028

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Brey

=====
From: Michael Broadhurst
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Broadhurst
7856 Rushmore Court
Fort Worth, Texas 76137

=====

From: michael brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael brown
1570 wastren
toledo , Ohio 43609

=====
From: Michael Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Brown
439 Clearfield St
Grassflat, Pennsylvania 16839

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Maria Broz
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2841 Apache Trail
Zip: 48393

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: MICHAEL BRUGGEMA

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL BRUGGEMA
1835 Lake Michigan Dr NW
Grand Rapids, Michigan 49504

=====
From: Michael Burdick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Burdick
2101 Freedom Valley Rd
Alma, AR 72921

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called
net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mr & Mrs. Michael Burdick

=====
From: Michael Burgun
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Burgun
129 Highland Dr
Angier, North Carolina 27501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers 202-234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Burleigh
611+wash+wilson+rd
Blue+ridge, GA 30513

=====
From: michael burnett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers 202-234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael burnett
PO Box 65931
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87193

=====
From: Michael Bush
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Bush
63 Hazel Ln
Pine Hill, New Jersey 08021

=====
From: michael- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Byrd
2118 Fordham Ln
Austin, TX 78723

=====
From: Michael Campos
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Campos
725 Anchor Cv
San Diego, California 92154

=====
From: Michael Canion
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Canion
570 Bushwhack Rd
Kerrville, Texas 78028

=====
From: Michael Cantrell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cantrell
2006 D St
Springfield, Oregon 97477

=====
From: Michael Cardoza
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cardoza
12843 Kling St Apt 110
Studio City, California 91604

=====
From: Michael Carey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Carey

, 29902
=====

From: MICHAEL CARPENTER
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL CARPENTER
2200 ROSE RD.
LOVELAND, Ohio 45140

=====
From: Michael Carter
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Legislation

I am counting on the FCC to do the right thing and rule in favor of open Internet policies.

I have also contacted my representatives in congress as well as the senate to further legislation that will protect our rights and keep the internet fair and balanced as far as content and speeds. The FCC can make this a much faster process with a decision that reflects the will of the people not the corporations that control access to something that has become vital to our everyday lives.

Â
Michael Carter,
4368 Croisan Ridge Way
Salem Oregon, 97302

=====
From: Michael Casady
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Casady
1121 N 11th St
Independence, Kansas 67301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Catlett
480+king+st+apt+a
Charleston, SC 29403

=====
From: Michael Caylor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Caylor
526 Oak St
Athens, Tennessee 37303

=====
From: michael cecere
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael cecere
848 McClelland Rd
Finleyville, Pennsylvania 15332

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Cervantes
1107 60th Ave
Oakland, CA 94621

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Garcia

444 Burcke Dr
Hazelwood, MO 63042

=====
From: michael cicaroni
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael cicaroni
230 sandpiper ave
royal palm beach , Florida 33411

=====
From: Michael Cichy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Cichy
107 Auburn Dr.
Charlestown, RI 02813

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Cichy

=====
From: Michael Cintron
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cintron
15 Meadow Run Pl
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17112

=====
From: Michael Clifton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Clifton
PO Box 152
Manns Harbor, North Carolina 27953

=====
From: Michael Clucas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Clucas

, 19390

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Clunis
832 Nw 130th Ave
Pembroke Pines, FL 33028

=====
From: Michael Colton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control. In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Colton
122 Lincoln Ave
Lockport, New York 14094

=====
From: Michael Cooney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cooney
6580 Seminole Blvd Lot 723
Seminole, Florida 33772

=====
From: Michael Coote
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Coote
263 NW Clark Ave
Mayo, Florida 32066

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Victoria Perkins
2605+Goshen+Rd
Winchester, KY 40391

=====
From: Michael Corrvin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Corrvin
520 Jefferson Ave
Mamaroneck, New York 10543

=====
From: Michael Costigan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Costigan
32 Mapledale Acres
Barneveld, New York 13304

=====
From: Michael Cotton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cotton
704 Mantooth
Lufkin, Virginia 75904

=====
From: Michael Covarrubias
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Covarrubias
690 Dry Hollow Rd
Elizabethton, Tennessee 37643

=====
From: Michael Cradduck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Cradduck
2098 Fullmoon Court
Independence, KY 41051

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Cradduck

=====
From: Michael Craig
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Craig
3035 Zeyno Drive
Middleburg, FL 32968

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Craig

=====
From: Michael Craycraft
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Craycraft
53 Elmont Ave
Hamilton, Ohio 45013

=====
From: Michael Cruel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Cruel
1924 17th St NW Apt 02
Washington, District of Columbia 20009

=====
From: Michael Cuellar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Re: Do Not Regulate the Internet

I did not send that SHIT ???check your shit right ...yours truly .
He'll

Sent from my iPod

On Sep 11, 2014, at 06:58 PM, OpenInternet <xxxx@xxxx.xxx> wrote:

> Thank you, we have received your comments and will review them.

=====
From: Michael Culliney

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Internet neutrality

Do not allow the Internet to be broken into fast lanes and slow lanes. Equal rights and equal speed for all. Stop all this madness!

Michael Culliney

=====
From: Michael Culver
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Culver
1386 County Road 32 E
Headland, Alabama 36345

=====
From: Michael Dane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

From: Michael Dardon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dardon
6427 Airport Blvd Apt 94
Mobile, Alabama 36608

=====
From: Michael Davis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Davis
1219 Meadowbrook Ave
Los Angeles, California 90019

=====
From: Michael Davis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Davis
7499 John Matthews Rd
Milton, Florida 32583

=====
From: Michael Davy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Davy
4550 N 12th Dr
Phoenix, Arizona 85013

=====
From: michael day
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael day
620 oasis rd
chico, California 95927

=====
From: Michael D. Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: MAINTAIN AN OPEN INTERNET

Look I could go on and on and rant against the government but let me be frank. Leave the internet alone. It belongs to the people. Do not muck it up with government regulations and interference. It polices itself. Either help keep it free or just get out of the way please.

Â

Michael D. Brown

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Dean Lewis
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 14 Piney Woods Drive
Zip: 08844

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michael Dees
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dees
13415 Hedgeapple Dr
Dallas, Texas 75243

=====
From: Michael Degiorgis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Degiorgis
265 Helen St Apt 15
Montrose, Michigan 48457

=====
From: Michael Dennis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dennis
1029 Parkview Cir
Hewitt, Texas 76643

=====
From: Michael DePante
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: True Net Neutrality

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

Mr. Chairman:

As someone who follows politics and recognizes that the myth of the liberal media has been firmly replaced with a corporate owned media machine that already filters what hear, see, and read, or don't hear, don't see, or don't read, I believe that free and open access to information, particularly uncensored and unrestricted alternative sources of information, is vital to the health of our democracy and the preservation of our freedom. For that reason, I am writing to ask that you take every action necessary to preserve true net neutrality, including regulating the internet as a public utility.

Sincerely,

Michael DePante

3951 Preserve Way
Estero, FL 33928

=====
From: Michael Desparte
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Desparte
239 Timbergate Trail
Blairsville, Georgia 30512

=====
From: Michael DeVault
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael DeVault
PO Box 873
Gold Beach, Oregon 97444

=====
From: Michael Devlin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Devlin
70 Woodlawn Ave Apt 62
Ansonia, Connecticut 06401

=====

From: Michael Dewey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Please keep the tubes unclogged

Do not allow corporate interests to decide where and how our "pluming" flows , is diverted or subverted.

The reason for the amazing adoption of the internet in the US is due to innovation by the little guys , allowing ISPs to prioritize traffic will in effect smother the small players (AKA start ups or independents). The internet as we know it will become a static revenue stream for the big players strangling innovation.

Thanks for your consideration
Mike

--

Mike Dewey of
All Technologies Unlimited, Inc
phone: 303.667.0357
e-mail: mdewey-at-alltechunlimited-dot-com

=====
From: Michael Dillon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dillon
1170 Winged Foot Dr.
Upland, California 91786

=====

From: michael dixon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael dixon
4526 15th Ave S
Seattle, Washington 98108

=====
From: Michael Domenico
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Domenico
2600A Dora Rd
Van Buren, Arkansas 72956

=====
From: Michael Donnell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Donnell
521 Cornell St
Bay City, Michigan 48708

=====
From: Michael Donnelly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Donnelly
6 Marion Ave
Claymont, Delaware 19703

=====
From: Michael Dorr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dorr
Box 104
Columbia Falls, Maine 04623-0104

=====
From: Michael Dowling
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dowling
11712 Summer Springs Dr
Riverview, Florida 33579

=====
From: Michael Downie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Downie
1261C Pine Creek Way
Concord, California 94520

=====
From: Michael Duffy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Duffy
398 Netherland Ave
Staten Island, New York 10303

=====
From: Michael Dugan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dugan

, Florida 32931

=====
From: Michael Duran
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Duran
408 Powell Cir
Austin, TX 78704-6363

=====
From: Michael Dutcher
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Dutcher
42 Mohawk St
Fort Plain, New York 13339

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kubo
235+paloverde+ter
Santa+cruz, CA 95060

=====
From: michael early
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael early
PO Box 01
Carbon, Indiana 47837

=====
From: Michael Eason
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael W. Eason
314 Vizcaya Dr
Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418

=====
From: Michael E Craig Jr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment Re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

Michael E Craig Jr
PO Box 3238
Santa Rosa, CA 95402

<http://list.credoaction.com/wf/open?upn=CFwW2LiM8egNfp5WPKl72vck1Jm5GzqaOw5FucO4B5J4XAj-2F9ZldZEbdddIMY45T8LEBRDOF3FWmq2w8gbN00avqCrk7cwiuwK-2F7mNLKGJOoHrgTUQdbALvFokAExbjEczWaLwugdWK6BfdmvdTC1KaLFoOt-2FA-2F8K2karlso29i0vL95t7dyHvvl6BIWUNltNIcgy01oIow-2B0TXbKyWj2w-3D-3D>

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael McClain
160+avery+st+#+a
Savannah, GA 31401
=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hanson
3326 Dartmouth Dr Se
Lacey, WA 98503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Eksteen
28912 Roadside Dr
Agoura Hills, CA 91301

=====
From: Michael Elias
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Elias
4163 Bernardo Ct
Chino, California 91710

=====
From: Michael Elkin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Elkin
150 E 58TH ST
NEW YORK, NY 10155

=====
From: Michael Ellenburg
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ellenburg
333 Tolbert Rd
Creola, Alabama 36525

=====
From: Michael Ensign
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ensign
10019 Lafe Dr
Santee, California 92071

=====
From: Michael Erickson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Erickson
2515 S 9th St
Minneapolis, MN 55406-1082

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Erps
1318 Wilson Ave
Ames, IA 50010

=====
From: Michael Ervin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ervin
1818 W Avenue H5
Lancaster, California 93534

=====
From: michael evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael evans
6690 andressen rd
sheridan, California 95681

=====
From: Michael Evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Evans
45 White St SW
Concord, North Carolina 28027

=====

From: Michael Fabi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Fabi
302 Indian Mills Rd
Shamong, New Jersey 08088

=====

From: Michael Fair
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Fair
307 Market St
Port Carbon, Pennsylvania 17965

=====
From: Michael Ferchland
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ferchland
6947 Ivy St.
Springfield, Oregon 97478-7357

=====
From: Michael Ferguson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Ferguson

42071 Paseo Sonrisa del Sol
Temecula, CA 92591

=====
From: michael fiies
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael fiies
418 Hillview Dr Apt 103
Linthicum Heights, Maryland 21090

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Fiorillo
108 Ahoy Rd
Manahawkin, NJ 08050

=====
From: Michael Fitzsimmons
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Fitzsimmons

, New Jersey 08846

=====
From: Michael F. Kolassa
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

=====
From: michael fontenot
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael fontenot
13903 Charlton Way Dr
Houston, Texas 77077

=====
From: Michael Ford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Ford
178 Manfre Rd
Watsonville, CA 95076-2018

=====
From: Michael Frederick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Frederick
11310 Sagecountry
Houston, TX 77089

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Frederick

=====
From: michael frost
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael frost
32 Webster Dr
Belgrade, Maine 04917

=====
From: Michael Fulton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Fulton
10138 Highway 494
Little Rock, Mississippi 39337

=====
From: Michael Fultz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Fultz
4015 Shevlin Ln
Mobile, Alabama 36609

=====
From: Michael Funk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Internet restrictions

For whatever reason someone has become obsessed with restricting access by incorporating such issues as fast and slow lanes is preposterous. Why limit growth and knowledge unless you wish to control and own the minds of the user with restrictions as in Communist China. This also clogs the economy and eventually stagnates developing pools of great innovations. Get real are we free or are we a Communistic society!

HYPERLINK "<https://overview.mail.yahoo.com/mobile/?src=Android>"Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

=====
From: Michael Furtado
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Furtado
45 Smith St
Riverside, RI 02915-4319

=====
From: Michael Gary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Gary
5388 Bedford Ter Unit A
Alexandria, VA 22309-5016

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chase Gassett
7075+e+marshall+st
Meigs, GA 31765

=====
From: Michael Gates

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Gates
3717 S. Taft Hill Rd. #241
Fort Collins, CO 80526

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Gates

=====
From: michael gay
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael gay

, California 92801

=====
From: michael gengler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael gengler

, 64056

=====
From: michael george
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

No Content Found -- Please specify some content The access to reach the groups / people / services and so forth, should be a level playing field for every consumer to every politician. Would you want your campaign message stopped or slowed significantly by a measure of this ?

michael george

23111

=====
From: Michael Gilbert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Gilbert
2547 McArthur St
Lakeland, Florida 33801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Glowa
1864+snapdragon+ct
Apopka, FL 32703

=====
From: Michael Godwin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Godwin

, 78336

=====
From: Michael Gonzalez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Gonzalez
13205 Oriente Ave NE
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87123

=====

From: Michael Goodale
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Goodale

hartsville, South Carolina 29550

=====
From: michael goodman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael goodman

3017 Lombard Ave Apt 301W
Everett, Washington 98201

=====
From: Michael Goodrich
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Goodrich
1037 South Main Street
Towanda, PA 18848

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Goodrich

=====
From: Michael Grace
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Grace
31 Boisvert St
Lowell, Massachusetts 01850

=====
From: Michael Grady
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Grady

, New York 12077

=====
From: Michael Graves
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Graves
21763 Highway 214 E
Harrisburg, Arkansas 72432

=====
From: Michael Green
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Green
221 Rustic Ridge Ln

Butler, Pennsylvania 16002

=====
From: Michael Green
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Green
8717 Westwood Rd.
Mountainburg, Arkansas 72946

=====
From: Michael Grundner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Grundner

, New York 11769

=====
From: michael guidone
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael guidone
163 Parker Farms Rd
Wallingford, Connecticut 06492

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Guinan
1966 Harton Rd
San Diego, CA 92123

=====
From: Michael Gulla
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Gulla
7348 Verbena Rd
Oak Hills, California 92344

=====
From: Michael Hair
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hair

, 37072

=====
From: Michael Halcli
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Halcli
4509 Larner
The Colony, Texas 75056

=====
From: michael hamel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael hamel
12703 16th St NE Apt 21
Lake Stevens, Washington 98258

=====
From: Michael Hamilton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hamilton
1716 Mill Creek Rd
Edmond, Oklahoma 73025

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Blake Hamilton
2426+bramble+way
Salt+lake+cty, UT 84117

=====
From: Michael Hanes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hanes
158 Odell Dr
Rogersville, Tennessee 37857

=====
From: Michael Harford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Harford
3594 Loch Haven Drive
Edgewater, MD 21037

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Z. Harford

=====
From: Michael Hart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hart
117 Sailview Dr
Forest, Virginia 24551

=====
From: Michael Hastava
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hastava
161 Long Beach Rd
Island Park, New York 11558

=====
From: michael hatstrup sr.
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael hatstrup sr.
ojai calif.
ojai, CA 93023

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
michael hatstrup sr.

=====
From: michael hauser
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael hauser
2911 Alpine Ter. cincinnati, Ohio 45208

=====
From: MICHAEL HAYES
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL HAYES
387 N Vinity Rd
Searcy, Arkansas 72143

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear. Investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hayes
1555 University Woods Pl
Tampa, FL 33612

=====
From: michael healy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael healy
1411 15th.ave.
Dorothy, NJ 08317

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
michael healy

=====
From: Michael Heard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Heard
1630 Market Ave N Apt 3D
Canton, Ohio 44714

=====
From: Michael Heath
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Heath
1056 Bluebird St
Naples, Florida 34104

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Heather Toci
1081 Hearthstone Way
Athens, GA 30606

=====
From: Michael Hebron
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hebron

, Virginia 24477

=====
From: Michael Herren
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a â\200\234public utilityâ\200\235 and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Herren
1532 Woods Loop
Vinton, Louisiana 70668

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Harrington

Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 4605 NE Beech St.
Zip: 97213

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michael Hicks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hicks
4837 Church St SW
South Boardman, Michigan 49680

=====
From: Michael Hicks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hicks
2705 McClammy St
Wilmington, North Carolina 28405

=====

From: MICHAEL HIETT
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL HIETT
1141 Wilkerson Dr
Albertville, Alabama 35951

=====
From: Michael Hight
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hight

133 S Duwe Ave
Lucas, Kansas 67648

=====
From: Michael Hobler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Hobler
P.O. Box 3040
Rapid City, SD 57709-3040

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Hobler

=====
From: Michael Hogan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hogan
20615 Hellenic Dr
Olympia Fields, Illinois 60461

=====
From: Michael Holden
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Holden
503 Kent St
Chestertown, MD 21620

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Holden

=====
From: michael holland
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Holland

, Florida 34285

=====
From: Michael Holman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Holman
1109 Strawn Ct
Flower Mound, Texas 75028

=====
From: Michael Holmes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Holmes
219 Holmes St
Lexington, Tennessee 38351

=====
From: Michael Hope
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hope
1265 Bingham Ave Apt 01
Idaho Falls, Idaho 83402

=====
From: Michael Hopper
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hopper
1316 Ashby Ct
Carson City, Nevada 89701

=====
From: Michael Horner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Horner
813 W Avenue Y
San Angelo, Texas 76903

=====
From: Michael Howe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Howe
E7176 Doud Rd
New London, Wisconsin 54961

=====

From: Michael Howie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Howie
830 Ray Suggs Pl NW
Concord, North Carolina 28027

=====
From: Michael Howie
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Howie
830 Ray Suggs Pl NW
Concord, North Carolina 28027

=====
From: Michael Hoyer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hoyer
22211 Loretta St
Woodhaven, Michigan 48183

=====
From: Michael Hubbard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hubbard
3250 Cedarbrook Rd
Cleveland Heights, Ohio 44118

=====
From: Michael Hubbard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hubbard
229 Robins Loop
Waco, Texas 76705

=====

From: Michael Huck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Huck
16301 Mountain Circle
Alexander, Arkansas 72002

=====
From: Michael Hudgins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hudgins
1100 Judy St.
Fort Worth, Texas 76108

=====
From: Michael Hudson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hudson
1107 N. Osceola Ave.
Clearwater, Florida 33755

=====
From: Michael Hudspeth
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hudspeth
1095 Natures Hammock Rd S
Saint Johns, Florida 32259

=====
From: Michael Huffman

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Huffman
819 Vance St
Paris, Illinois 61944

=====
From: Michael Hughes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hughes
312 Cossell Dr
Indianapolis, Indiana 46224

=====
From: michael hull
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael hull
6221 Shawnee Ave
Las Vegas, Nevada 89107

=====
From: Michael Huntsman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Huntsman
103 Ramsey Dr
Filer, Idaho 83328

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Deborah Evans
Po Box 1132
Heppner, OR 97836

=====
From: Michael Hynes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Hynes
11 Harvest Ln
Laconia, New Hampshire 03246

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Gregory
2323+moholt+dr
Eau+claire, WI 54703

=====
From: Michael Jackson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Jackson
10661 Steppington Dr Apt 4111
Dallas, Texas 75230

=====
From: Michael Jaeb
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Jaeb
1073 Evangeline Dr
Leland, North Carolina 28451

=====
From: Michael Janas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Janas
615 N I 75 Business Loop
Grayling, Michigan 49738

=====
From: Michael J. Carter
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael J. Carter
623 California Ave.
Boulder City, NV 89005

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael J. Carter

=====
From: Michael J. Carter
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael J. Carter
623 California Ave
Boulder City, NV 89005

=====
From: michael Jenkins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael Jenkins
4874 Crow Canyon Rd
Castro Valley, California 94552

=====
From: Michael Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Johnson
14151 Vernice Ave
San Jose, California 95127

=====
From: Michael Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Johnson
PO Box 51
Sheridan, Texas 77475

=====
From: Michael Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Jones
126 NE Babbit St
Lawton, Oklahoma 73507

From: Michael Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Jones
511 Clamp Dr
Leesville, South Carolina 29070

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Phillip Jones
104 Walbridge Hill Rd
Tolland, CT 06084

=====
From: Michael Juniet
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Juniet
330 East Main Street
Clarksville, OH 45113

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Juniet

=====
From: Michael. J. Zarembski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael. J. Zarembski
15647 narcissus ln
Orland park, Illinois 60462

=====
From: Michael Kearns
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Kearns
2850 York Haven Road
Manchester, PA 17345

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Kearns

=====
From: Michael Keene
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners
Democracy depends on an open internet, equal for all. Don't allow a special privilege for the rich.

Michael Keene

95959

=====
From: Michael Keene
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

Chairman Wheeler,
Please protect equal access to the internet for all. Do not bow to the large corporate interests that want a two tiered system. Keep everyone on an equal plane.

Sincerely,

Michael Keene

216 Reward St
Nevada City, CA 95959

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kellough
347 Sunnyside Ave
Harleysville, PA 19438

=====
From: Michael Kelly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kelly
1335 E 23rd Ave
Denver, Colorado 80205

=====
From: michael kenes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael kenes
5308 Westminster Ct N
Fort Worth, Texas 76133

=====
From: Michael Kerkvliet
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kerkvliet
8112 Saddlebrook Dr
Benbrook, Texas 76116

=====
From: Michael Khain
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Khain
1225 Saratoga Ave Apt 207A
San Jose, California 95129

=====
From: Michael Kintz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kintz
3161 W Cheryl Dr Apt B21
Phoenix, Arizona 85051

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Kirch
463 Bowen St
Monterey, CA 93940

=====
From: Michael Kiser
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kiser
45 Bright Ln Apt 105
Waynesboro, Virginia 22980

=====
From: Michael Knight
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Knight
5456 Wadean Pl
Oakland, California 94601

=====
From: Michael Kohl
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kohl
805 N Center St
Beaver Dam, Wisconsin 53916

=====
From: Michael Kraemer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Kraemer
PO Box 133
Warrens, WI 54666

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Kraemer

=====
From: Michael Krafinski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Safeguarding the Internet for all users!

I would like to voice my concern related to the FCC's proposed rules to protect the open Internet.

I believe that the current open model of the Internet, without fast lanes and slow lanes based on business deals by broadband providers, is the fairest policy for net users. I believe that the principle we call "net neutrality" is worthy of the strongest protections.

The Internet has become an important tool which provides the power to accelerate communication, commerce, education, and leisure for people around the world. Please assure that rules do not diminish the ability for everyone to access their personal choices on the Internet, however they wish.

The principle of net neutrality is critical for the future of the Internet as it applies to the average citizen. Internet access and speeds should not be altered to satisfy broadband providers, big businesses, and special interests.

Thank you for considering my opinion on this important issue.

Michael A. Krafinski
6633 75th Street
Middle Village, NY 11379
Â

--
MAK

=====
From: Michael Krainas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Krainas
10510 W Bernice Dr
Palos Park, Illinois 60464

=====
From: Michael Kruse
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kruse
13706 Rehm Dr
Helotes, Texas 78023

=====
From: Michael Kubinski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Kubinski
6471 Hunter Ct
Westland, Michigan 48185

=====
From: Michael Lamar Simeon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net Neutrality

As a concerned citizen of this country I urge all those involved to fully support an open internet. This is the 2nd most important issue to help maintain the democracy of this country (the first being a Constitutional Amendment barring money from politics).

As the saying goes "If it isn't broken don't fix it." Well the current model of the internet is not broken so it has no need to be "fixed." Stand by the people and support net neutrality.Â

=====

From: Michael Lambert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lambert
3711 Casteel Park Drive
Marietta, Georgia 30064

=====

From: Michael Lampert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lampert
6260 County Road M
Winneconne, Wisconsin 54986

=====
From: Michael Lane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lane
24 Mill St Apt A
Amityville, New York 11701

=====
From: Michael Lanham
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lanham
4047 Woodruff Ave
Louisville, Kentucky 40215

=====
From: Michael Lara
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lara
6815 W Cypress St
Phoenix, Arizona 85035

=====
From: Michael Lastufka
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lastufka
621 Brookside Dr
Cedar Hill, Texas 75104

=====
From: Michael Lattanzio
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lattanzio
1 lincoln plaza
new york, New York 10023

=====
From: michael laughlin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael laughlin
411 n. 11 st. eunice, LA 70535

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
michael laughlin

=====

From: Michael Law
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Common carrier

I want internet service providers classified as common carriers.

--
Michael Law

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lawson
1201 Foxcroft Rd
Regency, VA 23229

=====
From: Michael Lee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lee
6131 Rancho Mission Rd Unit 201
San Diego, California 92108

=====
From: Michaelle Grover
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michaëlle Grover
5600 14th Ave N
Saint Petersburg, Florida 33710

=====
From: Michael Leland
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Leland
12655 Glendale Circle Unit G
Stanton, California 90680

=====
From: Michael Levsey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Levsey
903 W Indian Trl
Louisville, Kentucky 40213

=====
From: michael lewis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael lewis
131 Bay 11th St
Brooklyn, New York 11228

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael E Lien
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 8100 Valley Oak Dr
Zip: 37027

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michael Lindquist
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lindquist
12235 W Skyhaven St
Star, Idaho 83669

=====
From: Michael Lingar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lingar
107 E Ida Ave
Electra, Texas 76360

=====
From: Michael Loar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Loar

Oxford, Alabama 36203

=====
From: Michael Lovan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lovan
242 West Main Street
Hendersonville, Tennessee 37075

=====
From: Michael Lucas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lucas
29112 Carlton St
Inkster, Michigan 48141

=====
From: Michael Luginbill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Luginbill
15953 Clayton Rd
Willshire, Ohio 45898

=====
From: michael luttrell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael luttrell
3546 campground rd.
munford, TN 38058

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
deborah luttrell

=====
From: michael luttrell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

michael luttrell
3546 campground rd.
munford, TN 38058

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
michael luttrell

=====
From: Michael Lyons
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers â\200\223 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCCâ\200\231s rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lyons
1331 W Baseline Rd Unit 127
Mesa, Arizona 85202

=====
From: Michael Lyons
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Lyons

, Florida 33635

=====
From: Michael Mahoney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Mahoney
14407 Silver Birch Ct
Midlothian, Virginia 23112

=====
From: Michael Maldonado
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Maldonado
2000 SE 28th Ave Apt 617
Amarillo, Texas 79103

=====

From: Michael Maloney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: PAID PRIORITIZATION SHOULD BE BARRED ALTOGETHER

There will be no innovation or improvement in speed or service if Comcast begins charging content providers. We are already behind many other industrialized countries in terms of access to Internet and Internet speed. To maximize profits, comcast will devote its energy towards cost saving, since competition has already been eliminated. No internet provider could possibly compete with time warner. With paid prioritization, they will continue to use profits to lobby congress members to stop competition, instead of devoting profits to innovation. I already deal with regular loss of internet connection with time warner.

Paid prioritization should be barred altogether.

Concerned citizen,
Michael Maloney

Sent from my iPad

=====

From: Michael Manary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Manary
25304 181st Ave SE
Covington, Washington 98042

=====

From: Michael Mancuso
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Mancuso
4 South Brett Street Apt. B
Beacon, New York 12508

=====
From: Michael Markarian
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Markarian
1241 Concord Dr

Brick, New Jersey 08724

=====
From: Michael Marque
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Marque
334 Brennan Ct
Antioch, California 94509

=====
From: Michael Marshall
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Marshall
408 W Dormard Ave
Midland, Texas 79705

=====
From: Michael Martin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Martin
4174 Bent Willow Dr SW
Lilburn, GA 30047

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Martin

=====
From: Michael Martin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Martin
169 Brookfield Ln
Kingsport, Tennessee 37663

=====
From: Michael Martin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Martin
4174 Bent Willow Dr SW
Lilburn, GA 30047
=====

From: Michael Martinez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Martinez
1580 Shadowridge Dr Apt 101
Vista, California 92081

=====
From: Michael Martini
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Martini
4180 Poole Road
Cincinnati, OH 45251

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Martini

=====
From: Michael M. Assenza
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: openinternet

Keep the internet open to all and not restrict by speed pricing war by service providers. The new business venture to charge users based on up and down speeds making the internet and all it can provide out of reach soon to the common man and small business owner.

It would be more wise to establish a standard for a mandatory up/down speeds that are equal vs having a system business dictates just what the speeds will be by selling multi plans with varying up/down speeds and pushing people away from the internet's potential for them.

Efficiencies of design and service maintenance will weed out the bad suppliers from the good. BUT give the users the fastest speed technology can offer regardless of the supplier and the user will determine just what he/she can accomplish with such speeds.

Thank You,
Michael M. Assenza
1 Highland Avenue
Stanhope, New Jersey 07874
phone: 973.691.1250
HYPERLINK
"http://webmailb.netzero.net/webmail/new/21?folder=Inbox&uniqMsgId=001K4pP^00002EJN&attachId=03&user=xxxx@xxxx.xxx&userinfo=218e1872ac7effa67eba788378cfb7ad&randid=606560952" xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Thank You,
Michael M. Assenza
1 Highland Avenue
Stanhope, New Jersey 07874
phone: 973.691.1250
HYPERLINK "mailto: xxxx@xxxx.xxx" xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Michael Mc
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Mc
2971 Lakeside VILLA Rd
Orange Park, Florida 32073

=====

From: Michael Mcadoo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Mcadoo
10887 SE Mather Rd
Clackamas, Oregon 97015

=====

From: Michael McCarthy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McCarthy
8017 Rimini Trail
Austin, Texas 78729

=====
From: Michael McClanhan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McClanhan
13312 Fox Farm Road
De Soto MO, Missouri 63020
=====

From: MICHAEL McCONNELL
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL McCONNELL

, 33024

=====
From: Michael McCown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McCown
115 Southern Hills Circle
Calera, Alabama 35040

=====
From: Michael McCown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael McCown
4912 Green Willow Ln
Dickinson, TX 77539

=====
From: Michael McDowell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McDowell
2103 Almond Dr
Arlington, Texas 76006

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mcelhare
225+coffee+rd+apt+20
Lynchburg, VA 24503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mcknight
12906 Ranch Road 2341
Burnet, TX 78611

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael McMahon
8655+Shadow+Ridge+Ln+Apt+F
Indianapolis, IN 46239

=====
From: Michael Mcmillan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Mcmillan
631 E Groveland Park
Chicago, Illinois 60616

=====
From: Michael McNeff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McNeff
P.O. Box 1246
Coupeville, Washington 98239

=====
From: Michael McQuade
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael McQuade

53 Richardson Rd
West Brookfield, Massachusetts 01585

=====
From: Michael Menne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Menne
7100 Ulmerton Rd Lot 392
Largo, FL 33771

=====
From: Michael Merchant
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Merchant
207 W.Ridgewood Ct
Longwood, FL 32779

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely, Mr. Michael Merchant
Michael Merchant

=====
From: Michael Michaels
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net Neutrality

Common carriers!

Michael

=====
From: michael miears
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael miears
129 Bloomington Ave Apt 514
Bremerton, Washington 98312

=====
From: Michael Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Miller
5044 South 20th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53221

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Miller

=====
From: Michael Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Miller
37313 Highway 74 Trlr 20
Geismar, Louisiana 70734

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Miller
10 Spring Ln
Hopkinton, MA 01748

=====
From: Michael Miranda
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Miranda
,
Missouri 63090

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Marrs
203 S 3rd St
Benton, AR 72015

=====
From: Michael Moen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Moen
PO Box 1926
Cottonwood, CA 96022

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented

advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Moen

=====
From: Michael Moore
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Moore
118 Brookhaven Dr.
Moore, South Carolina 29369

=====
From: Michael Morgan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Morgan
12 Duvall Ln
Bella Vista, Arkansas 72715

=====
From: Michael Morris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Morris
50 Lakeshore Dr NW
Conyers, Georgia 30012

=====
From: Michael Moscatelli
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Moscatelli
39 01/02 Flax Hill Road
Brookfield, Connecticut 06804

=====
From: michael Mullen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael Mullen
14625 262nd Ave SE
Issaquah, Washington 98027

=====
From: Michael Murphy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Murphy
1 Balla Road
Carmel, NY 10512

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Murphy

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Bryant
3579 Rogers Mill Rd
Mt Sterling, KY 40353

=====
From: Michael N. Catalano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open internet

I am NOT a terrorist. American born, 1948, US Military Veteran, 1969-2002, I enjoy/use open internet. Regards/Sincere, Michael N. Catalano

=====
From: Michael Nellenback
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Nellenback
800 Pond St Apt 304
Syracuse, New York 13208

=====
From: Michael Neumann
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Neumann
7514 Kachina Loop
Santa Fe, NM 87507

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Neumann

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Newberg
570+annarose+run
Westerville, OH 43081

=====
From: Michael Nieland
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,
Michael Nieland
305 E 2nd St
Woodward, IA 50276

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hall
130 Wilkes Cir
Santa Cruz, CA 95060

=====
From: Michael Nooks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Nooks
337 Ernst Ave Apt 02
Dayton, Ohio 45405

=====
From: Michael Noonan

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Noonan
314 Barcelona St
Vallejo, California 94591

From: Michael Norling
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Norling
518 Lois Ln
Nipomo, California 93444

=====
From: Michael OBrien
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael OBrien

, Indiana 46033

=====
From: Michael OConnor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Comments

I am STRONGLY AGAINST business models that create slow lanes and fast lanes on the Internet. In the absence of clear rules prohibiting discrimination and other forms of paid fast lane, I am worried about the consequences for consumers, startups and innovation. The internet is the last frontier that isn't completely ruled by BIG BUSINESS, let's keep it that way!

Â
Thank-you,
Â
Michael O'Connor
Pawtucket, RI

=====
From: Michael Olcsvary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open internet

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

The internet must be regulated as a public utility under common carrier rules. It is a resource, not just another vehicle for commerce. It is a public town square, available to all who seek opinions or wish to express them. And it is too expensive and too slow under current circumstances. If America is to remain competitive, informed and educated this resource cannot be segregated into "haves and have nots." I urge you to treat the internet as the public utility it is.

Sincerely,

Michael Olcsvary

5823 202nd St SW #05
Lynnwood, WA 98036

=====
From: Michael Oppenheimer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Oppenheimer
63 victor lane
hamlin , New York 14464

=====
From: Michael Orton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Orton
3770 S Copper Hollow Dr
Magna, Utah 84044

=====
From: Michael Ousset
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Ousset
9020 Creekwood Pass
Spring Branch, TX 78070

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current hands off regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called net neutrality rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing net neutrality and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Ousset

=====
From: Michael Owens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Owens
7830 Misty Moon
San Antonio, Texas 78250

=====
From: Michael Owens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Owens
7830 Misty Moon
San Antonio, Texas 78250

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Padilla
Po Box 67545
Albuquerque, NM 87193

=====
From: Michael Palermo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Palermo
9408 Brian Jac Ct
Great Falls, Virginia 22066

=====
From: Michael Parker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Parker
4002 Alexandria Drive
Austin, Texas 78749

=====
From: Michael Paschen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Paschen
2515 S Scott St
Des Plaines, Illinois 60018

=====
From: Michael Patten
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Patten
526 Sparkleberry Drive
Murrells Inlet, SC 29576

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Patten

=====

From: Michael Paxton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Paxton
1822 Wilson St
Lafayette, Indiana 47904

=====
From: michael pearce
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael pearce

, 85338

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Pentz
231 Canal St
Newport Beach, CA 92663

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Peppe
400 Hyde St Apt 507
San Francisco, CA 94109

=====
From: Michael Peterson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

the internet is a democracy...equal to all...MCP

=====
From: Michael Peterson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Peterson
300 Berkley Dr Apt U6
Madison, Tennessee 37115

From: Michael Piazza
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Piazza
105 Longwood Dr
Clinton, Mississippi 39056

From: Michael Pietrantonio
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Pietrantonio
166 Gravel St
Meriden, Connecticut 06450

=====
From: michael pipkin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael pipkin
PO Box 1288
Monticello, Utah 84535

=====
From: Michael Pittelko
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Pittelko
12314 Ridgemont Rd.
Louisville, Kentucky 40229

=====
From: Michael Plinske
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Plinske
14076 Indian Beach Rd
Spicer, Minnesota 56288

=====
From: Michael Pohlod
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Pohlod
411 Bennaville Ave
Birmingham, Michigan 48009

=====
From: Michael Porteous
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. Thatâ\200\231s what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Porteous
320 S Rendon St
New Orleans, Louisiana 70119

=====
From: Michael Price

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Price
704 Haymarket Rd
Dallas, Texas 75217

=====
From: Michael Profitt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Profitt

147 E 28th St
Brooklyn, New York 11226

=====
From: Michael Qualiana
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Qualiana
112 Campbell Ave
Crestview, Florida 32536

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Johnny Tsunami
1146+redwood+st
Corona, CA 92879

=====
From: Michael Raburn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Raburn
1073 S Moody Rd
Palatka, Florida 32177

=====
From: Michael Ragovin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ragovin
3692 Terrapin Ln Apt 1602
Coral Springs, Florida 33067

=====
From: Michael Raines
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Raines
171 Road 199
Tupelo, Mississippi 38801

=====
From: Michael Reeb
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Reeb
117 Windelin Dr
Henrietta, New York 14467

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years - that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Reis
703 Buffalo Springs Dr
Allen, TX 75013

=====
From: Michael Reynolds
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Reynolds
24290 Walnut Hill Place
Aldie, VA 20105-2366

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Reynolds

=====
From: Michael Ricci
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ricci
4777 Tramway Blvd NE Apt 205
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87111

=====
From: Michael Ricosky
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ricosky
847 Green Ave SW
Massillon, Ohio 44647

=====
From: Michael Riser
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Riser
1333 Rocky Rd
Mammoth Lakes, CA 93546

=====
From: Michael Rishell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job -- providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service -- it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Rishell
6424 Lake Dr
Haslett, Michigan 48840

=====
From: Michael Rivera
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Rivera

Philadelphia , Pennsylvania 19137

=====
From: Michael Rivera
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Rivera
14126 Woodstream
San Antonio, TX 78231
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

From: Michael Robbins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Robbins
15413 118th St
Oskaloosa, Kansas 66066

=====
From: michael roberts
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael roberts
133 Lake Front Dr Apt 1301
Daphne, Alabama 36526

=====
From: Michael Robertson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Robertson
9797 Meadowglen Ln Apt 1305
Houston, Texas 77042

=====
From: Michael Robinson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years â\200\223 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Donâ\200\231t ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Robinson
10313 County Lane 265
Carl Junction, Missouri 64834

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Robinson
219 Myers Ln
Pageland, SC 29728

=====
From: Michael Rodriguez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Rodriguez
10047 Flora Vista St
Bellflower, California 90706

=====
From: Michael Roels
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Roels
547 N Pioneer Dr
Addison, Illinois 60101

=====
From: Michael Rosado
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Rosado
315 Flatbush Ave
Brooklyn, New York 11217

=====
From: michael rozman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael rozman
116 s. 8th st.
dixon, California 95620
=====

From: Michael Rucker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Rucker
818 Dr Martin Luther King Jr Dr
Yazoo City, Mississippi 39194

=====
From: Michael Ruesch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ruesch
441 16th St S
Wisconsin Rapids , Wisconsin 54494

=====

From: Michael Russell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Russell
515 Sassy Ct
Richlands, North Carolina 28574

=====
From: Michael Ryan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ryan
23715 S. Courtney Lane
Claremore, Oklahoma 74019

=====
From: Michael Sallee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sallee
460 Norvelle Ct
Glen Burnie, Maryland 21061

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Ghabour

225+nepperhan+ave+apt+3n
Yonkers, NY 10701

=====
From: Michael Sanfilippo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sanfilippo
2755 Oakmont St # A4
Sacramento, California 95815

=====
From: Michael Sarkies
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael T Sarkies

210 Ramsey Dr
Carencro, LA 70520
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Michael Sawilski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sawilski
1605 NW 46th St
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73118

=====
From: Michael Saxman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Saxman
416 8th Ave S
Nampa, ID 83651

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Saxman

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Chernenko
261 Hiwassee Rd
Lebanon, TN 37087

=====
From: Michael Schiavone
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Schiavone
63 Storey Ln
Yonkers, New York 10710

=====
From: Michael Scoggins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Scoggins
311 Pinehurst Blvd
San Antonio, Texas 78221

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Sears
11330+cromwell+dr
Dallas, TX 75229

=====
From: Michael Sellers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldnâ\200\231t the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCCâ\200\231s attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers â\200\223 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCCâ\200\231s rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sellers
115 S Hamilton St
Poughkeepsie, New York 12601

=====
From: Michael Seltzer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Seltzer
13666 S 1st E
Idaho Falls, Idaho 83404

=====
From: Michael Sepulveda
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sepulveda
19626 E Caspian Cir
Aurora, Colorado 80013

=====
From: michael sexton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissionersâ\200\223â\200\223â\200\223â\200\223

We the people, not corperations, want you to leave OUR internet alone....

michael sexton

14715

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Green
1194 N Old Hwy 91
Inkom, ID 83245

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: MikeBurns
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address:
Zip: 22044

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michael Shields
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Shields
2500 Waters Edge Dr.
Granbury, Texas 76048

=====
From: Michael Sisk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sisk
3460 Borreson Street
San Diego, California 92117

=====
From: Michael Skalsky
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissionersâ\200\223â\200\223â\200\223â\200\223

Please do something for the average person and not the rich people. It's time to change policies in the US before its to late.

Michael Skalsky

78602

=====
From: Michael Skok
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Skok
6014 Broadway St
Lancaster, NY 14086
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: michael slaninka
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael slaninka
4112 Shady Oak Dr
Ooltewah, Tennessee 37363

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Slaughter
433 S Market St
Wooster, OH 44691

=====

From: Michael Smart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Smart
3701 N Locust St
Muncie, Indiana 47304

=====

From: Michael Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Smith
1435 Patriot Dr
Gaylord, Michigan 49735

=====
From: Michael Smyth
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Smyth
18279 Grizzly Bear Ct
Reno, Nevada 89508

=====
From: Michael Snyder
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Snyder
2503 Alexandra Mdw
Watertown, New York 13601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Ortega
40033 Heathrow Dr
City Ranch, CA 93551

=====
From: Michael Spawr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Spawr

, Florida 34240

=====
From: Michael Spencer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Spencer
19020 Pau Hana Ct
Edelstein, Illinois 61526

=====
From: Michael Sprague
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sprague
123 Hampton Lake Dr
Rolesville, North Carolina 27571

=====
From: Michael Spurr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael Spurr
10026 Topeka Dr
Mint Hill, NC 28227
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====

From: Michael Stall
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Stall
19318 Winston St
Detroit, Michigan 48219

=====
From: Michael stanfield
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael stanfield
1270 7th St

Cherokee, Alabama 35616

=====
From: Michael Stanfill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Stanfill
180 Schwartz Hill Ln
Vienna, Illinois 62995

=====
From: Michael Stanfill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Stanfill
180 Schwartz Hill Ln
Vienna, Illinois 62995

=====
From: Michael Stechna
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Stechna
205 Hildegard Rd
Rochester, New York 14626

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Crabb
2220+w+mission+ln+apt+1233
Phoenix, AZ 85021

=====

From: Michael Steinmeyer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment Re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

Michael Steinmeyer
Pastorenkamp 14, Wagenfeld, Germany
Hamilton, MI 49419

<http://list.credoaction.com/wf/open?upn=CFwW2LiM8egNfp5WPKl72vck1Jm5GzqaOw5FucO4B5KGTTxssKddFEMK-2F5RPMKkzVuyS6KE-2FcYRALBf-2BiP0Nubf5EbR3rMamprHf360-2BxQDgUeKIdCGGnTKkm5fZ-2B7W8rXKKKPAD3j6bTDxRiVD7m-2BXMgxCt27vilwAhHpFB6-2FBbA9jfGwkjSuj-2Brl5a7WvLioeQrwcII5oZm6cjuHTbQ-3D-3D>

=====

From: Michael Stewart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Stewart
3246 Lupine Dr
Indianapolis, Indiana 46224

=====
From: Michael Strate
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Strate
1104 E Hanover St
New Baden, Illinois 62265

=====
From: Michael Strawn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment Re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

Michael Strawn
29631 Palomino
Warren, MI 48093

<http://list.credoaction.com/wf/open?upn=CFwW2LiM8egNfp5WPKl72vck1Jm5GzqaOw5FucO4B5JjmZDCLxxy0Vc-2BV2Qg5ruIo38fyEhBHWBiA1HxgYH50SWw3HZioZhMFLrkt7Of4IYOvKbtT5ajSUXtGukS7MCP5GVp-2B9LF1-2Bg4iBIeXofFeMbUxoFywrMuvdtbJ5CL-2F3grNH-2ByAow207vBCx9xkffxOaupjDu6rIJgEdHmMt4HQ-3D-3D>

=====
From: Michael Sudbrink
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Sudbrink
171 Blueberry Lane
Hicksville, NY 11801

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Sudbrink

=====
From: Michael Sullivan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Sullivan
632 Hwy 07 West
Pollok, Texas 75969

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Sullivan
380 George St Apt B
New Brunswick, NJ 08901

=====
From: Michael Summers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Summers
1153 Woodside Dr.
Pine, Colorado 80470

=====
From: Michael Svoboda
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Svoboda
2643 Fulton Ave.
Sacramento, CA 95821

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Svoboda

=====
From: Michael Swilley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Swilley
12395 W Jefferson Terrace
Franklin, Wisconsin 53132

=====
From: Michael Swillman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Swillman
544 Fishers Loop
Sharps Chapel, Tennessee 37866

=====
From: Michael Taylor
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael taylor
3001 Axtell St
Clovis, New Mexico 88101

=====
From: Michael T. Curnkey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael T. Curnkey

, 07826

=====
From: Michael Tennen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Re: Do Not Regulate the Internet

It's a good idea to regulate the internet,

On Wed, Sep 10, 2014 at 09:34 PM, OpenInternet <HYPERLINK "mailto: xxxx@xxxx.xxx"> wrote:

Thank you, we have received your comments and will review them.

=====
From: Michael TerBush
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael TerBush
5789 NW Landing Drive
Portland, Oregon 97229-1078

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mccloud
3708 Joy Ln
Waldorf, MD 20603

=====
From: michael thoma
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael thoma
n6722 cnty rd G
neillsville, Wisconsin 54456

=====
From: Michael Thorpe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Thorpe
6340 Century City S Apt 11
Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43068

=====
From: Michael Todd
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Todd
1403 S 128th St
Burien, Washington 98168

=====
From: Michael Todryk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Todryk
7221 Zaharias dr.
McKinney, Texas 75070

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -â\202â\200\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Trabold
1410 Woodstork Dr
Brandon, FL 33511

=====
From: michael travers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

=====
From: michael travers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

No Content Found -- Please specify some content please do not sell the internet the people paid for to some nameless faceless corporation so the people won't get the dirty end of the stick ty...

michael travers

80017

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Trudeau
819 Freeman St
Santa Ana, CA 92703

=====
From: Michael Turner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Turner
1529 Farmer St
Richlands, Virginia 24641

=====
From: Michael Turner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Turner
632 34th St
Newport News, Virginia 23607

=====
From: Michael Upton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael C. Upton
7343 El Camino Real Apt 205
Atascadero, CA 93422
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: Michael Uriegas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Uriegas
536 Barrett Ave
San Antonio, Texas 78214

=====
From: Michael Valdez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Valdez
2707 E 13th St
Pueblo, Colorado 81001

=====

From: Michael Valencia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Valencia
30531 Covecrest Cir
Menifee, California 92584

=====
From: Michael Valgos
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Valgos
3620 Camino Real
Modesto, California 95356

=====
From: Michael Vandergrift
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Vandergrift
3333 Dixon Rd
Durham, North Carolina 27707

=====
From: Michael Van Riper
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michael Van Riper
21 W Shore Dr
Putnam Valley, NY 10579-1932

=====
From: Michael Vaughan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Vaughan
649 Par Pl
Belvidere, Illinois 61008

=====
From: Michael Venz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Venz
302 10th St
Crystal City, Missouri 63019

=====
From: Michael Ver Straete
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Ver Straete
2803 Madison St
Bellevue, Nebraska 68005

=====
From: Michael Vines
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Vines
2030 35th St
Orange, Texas 77630

=====
From: Michael Vizcaino
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Vizcaino
338 S State St
Los Angeles, California 90033

=====
From: Michael Voutsinas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Voutsinas
47 Laurel St
Carteret, New Jersey 07008

=====
From: Michael Wade
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Wade
3413 W. Burgundy Ct.
Mequon, Wisconsin 53092

From: Michael Wahlstrom
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Wahlstrom
17765 Lillian St
Omaha, Nebraska 68136

From: Michael Walker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Walker
4309 Russell Ave Apt 05
Mount Rainier, Maryland 20712

=====
From: Michael Walker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Walker
7694 Teays Valley Rd
Scott Depot, West Virginia 25560
=====

From: Michael Walton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Walton
3505 86th street
Lubbock, Texas 79423

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Ward
619 Albatross St
P C Beach, FL 32413

=====
From: Michael Warren
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Warren
W9690 State Road 60
Lodi, Wisconsin 53555

=====
From: Michael Weinert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michael Weinert
4752 Feather River Rd
Corona, CA 92880

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michael Weinert

=====
From: Michael Welch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Welch
1821 Peachtree Ln Apt 01
Richland, Washington 99352

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Welstead
174 Raupp Blvd
Buffalo Grove, IL 60089

=====
From: Michael Weston
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Weston
2953 Cottage Pl Apt D
Greensboro, North Carolina 27455

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Wilder
1266 Paynes Church Rd
Winchester, TN 37398

=====
From: Michael Wilhite
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Wilhite
1319 E Missouri St
Evansville, Indiana 47711

=====

From: Michael Willing
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Willing
2262 Ridge Drive
Broomfield, Colorado 80020

=====
From: Michael Wilson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Wilson
21580 Elbow Lk Rd SE
Yelm Wa, Washington 98597

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Winarta
201 N Russell St Apt 06
Lafayette, IN 47906

=====
From: Michael Winnen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Winnen
12825 Flora Vista St
Poway, California 92064

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Jones
1717 78th Street Trl
Luzerne, IA 52257

=====
From: Michael W Lindley m
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael W Lindley m
10300 Evora Lane
Bakersfield, California 93306

=====
From: Michael W. Martin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael W. Martin
4174 Bent Willow Dr SW
Lilburn, Georgia 30047-3365

=====
From: Michael W. Martin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael W. Martin
4174 Bent Willow Dr SW
Lilburn, Georgia 30047-3365

=====
From: Michael Woodrick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Woodrick
6514 N 82nd Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85250

=====
From: michael woolford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michael woolford
2406 sewanee st.
lynn haven , Florida 32444

=====
From: Michael Wright
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Wright
3604 Spring Creek Rd
Rockford, Illinois 61107

=====
From: Michael Wuerth
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Wuerth
516 So. 55th St.
Omaha, Nebraska 68106

=====
From: Michael Yeager
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Yeager
1605 Rock Hollow Loop
Bryan, Texas 77807

=====

From: Michael Yeager
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Yeager
790 Ahart Ridge Rd
Ararat, Virginia 24053

=====
From: Michael Yeary
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michael D Yeary
83 Brandon Ln
Crimora, VA 24431

XXXX@XXXX.XXX

=====
From: Michael Zimov
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Zimov
2 Tabby Ln
Isle of Palms, South Carolina 29451

=====
From: Michael Zoroya
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael Zoroya
22570 Brookforest
Novi, Michigan 48375

=====
From: Michal Baczyk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michal Baczyk
19 Woodland St # 02
Plainville, Connecticut 06062

=====
From: Michalski James
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michalski James
6988 Heritage Pl
Acworth, Georgia 30102

=====
From: Michal Ward
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a â\200\234public utilityâ\200\235 and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michal Ward
216 Coy St
Harrison, Arkansas 72601

=====
From: Mich Bernardo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mich Bernardo
2000 E Mariposa Ave
El Segundo, California 90245

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rachael Callaway
325+charming+ct

Mcdonough, GA 30252

=====
From: Micheal D. Beaty
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Micheal D. Beaty
6973 S E Nighthawk Ln.
Riverton, KS 66770

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Micheal D. Beaty

=====
From: Micheal Gibbens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micheal Gibbens
37 McFarland Dr
Rolla, Missouri 65401-3828

=====
From: micheal luster
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

micheal luster
925 E Arlington St
Compton, California 90221

=====
From: Micheal Moses
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Micheal Moses
PO Box 203
Ten Sleep, WY 82442

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented

advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm Americaâ\200\231s digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called â\200\234net neutrality.â\200\235

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Micheal Moses

=====
From: Micheal Phillips
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a â\200\234public utilityâ\200\235 and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micheal Phillips
3198 Town and Country Rd
Donalsonville, Georgia 39845

=====

From: Micheal Sherrod
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micheal Sherrod
1007 Florence Ave
Muscle Shoals, Alabama 35661

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Steve Mostowa

5402 E Yale St
Phoenix, AZ 85008

=====
From: Michel Avery
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michel Avery
4257 Jones Ln
Washington, Missouri 63090

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Maniglia
2117 Abbey Cir
Plainfield, IL 60586

=====
From: Michele Allard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Allard
1437 Silver Ave
Indianapolis, Indiana 46221

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Lovada Joan Kennedy
8106 Lions Crest Way
Gaithersburg, MD 20879

=====
From: Michele Andrychowski
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Andrychowski
2327 Longview Dr
Coatesville, Pennsylvania 19320

=====
From: Michele Bowen

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Bowen
413 Kirby Creek Dr
Grand Prairie, Texas 75052

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michel Brass
1017 Richards St
Joliet, IL 60433

=====
From: Michele Burden
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Burden
1457 Maguire Ln
Warminster, Pennsylvania 18974

=====
From: Michele Burlakoff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Burlakoff
63 Woodworth Rd
Guilford, Connecticut 06437

=====
From: Michele Cain
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Cain
3774 Rt 31
Liverpool, New York 13090

=====
From: Michele Carruthers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Carruthers
904 Dutch Hollow Rd
Dunbar, West Virginia 25064

=====
From: Michele Carruthers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Carruthers
904 Dutch Hollow Rd
Dunbar, West Virginia 25064

=====
From: Michele Chiappetta
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Chiappetta
449 Sylvan Knoll Rd
Stamford, Connecticut 06902

=====
From: michele conant
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michele conant
PO Box 746
Somerset, California 95684

=====
From: Michele Corona
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Corona
535 Burnett Ave S Apt 01
Renton, Washington 98057

=====
From: Michele Davies
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Davies
108 Nimmons Cir
Seneca, South Carolina 29678

=====
From: Michele Dearth
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michele Dearth
12 Indian Trl
Lake Dallas, TX 75065

=====
From: Michele Deprater
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider wheth er the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Deprater
817 Clemens Way
Lompoc, California 93436

=====
From: Michele Dixon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Dixon
774 Blackberry Lane
Galax, Virginia 24333

=====
From: Michele Egggemeyer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Michele Egggemeyer
508 2nd St
Evansville, IL 62242

=====
From: Michele Fernet
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Fernet
7 Grissom Dr
Clifton Park, New York 12065

=====
From: Michele Ferrell

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Ferrell
219 York Ave Apt B3
Lansdale, Pennsylvania 19446

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Fortin
84+stedman+st
Quincy, MA 02169

=====
From: Michele French
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michele French
707 Mahogany Drive
Dayton, NV 89403

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michele French

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Gray
617 Beelard Dr
Vacaville, CA 95687

=====
From: Michele Hoeft
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Hoeft
W5720 Simpson Rd
Winter, Wisconsin 54896

=====
From: Michele Johnson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Johnson
5408 Arbolada Dr
La Grange, California 95329

=====
From: Michele Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Jones
807 Wickford Dr
Chesapeake, Virginia 23320

=====
From: Michele Jordan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Jordan
3123 Moravia Rd
Baltimore, Maryland 21214

=====
From: michele keedy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michele keedy
1925 S Dupont Hwy
Dover, Delaware 19901

=====
From: Michele Keller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Keller
566 Summit Ave
Baldwin, New York 11510

=====
From: Michele LaBlanc
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele LaBlanc
2920 Timothy Ln
Euless, Texas 76039

=====
From: Michele McCarty
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele McCarty
, Nevada 89121

=====
From: Michele Monks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Internet

Please maintain an open Internet.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cathy Musselwhite
5495 Enochville School Rd
China Grove, NC 28023

=====
From: Michelena Boehmer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelena Boehmer
3228 Deep Creek Rd
Perkiomenville, Pennsylvania 18074

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micheline Williams
2825 Bluegrass Ln Apt 1002
Henderson, NV 89074

=====
From: Michele Parrow
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Parrow
11 Liquori Dr
Southwick, Massachusetts 01077

=====
From: Michele Pedersen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Pedersen
4716 SW 35th Ave

Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33312

=====
From: Michele Pollitt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Pollitt
5465 High Pasture Way
Melbourne, Florida 32940

=====
From: Michele Romeo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Romeo
33614 Leona St
Garden City, Michigan 48135

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Romero
36 S 23rd St
Wyandanch, NY 11798

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michele R. Wright
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 12025 Town Square Street, Unit 1503
Zip: 20190

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michele Ryan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Ryan
1071 W Pine Ave Apt 01
Meridian, Idaho 83642

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Sandham
6 Clinton Dr
N Kingstown, RI 02852

=====
From: Michele Sciarra
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the 'nuclear option' because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Sciarra
2607 Winston Rd
Bethlehem, Pennsylvania 18017

=====
From: Michele Sherriton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

If 'pay to play' is approved we consumers will bear the higher costs -- this is always the case. Already, cable companies charge us different rates for our internet speeds. Now, services we use will also increase charges to cover their higher costs. I know you understand this spiral.

I'm asking you to recognize not only the economic impact on society but also that while 'profits' are good, you only have to look at stock reports to see that they're already great for big telecom companies who, additionally, are trying to consolidate the market place.

I urge you to maintain 'net neutrality' and to keep some semblance of an open playing field.

Thank you.

Michele Sherriton

33019

=====
From: Michele Siciliano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCCâ\200\231s attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Siciliano
2637 Woodgate Ln
Sarasota, Florida 34231

=====
From: Michele Spell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Spell
2905 Deep Channel Ct
Fayetteville, North Carolina 28306

=====
From: Michele Stevens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michele Stevens

2040 Strawberry Dr
New Market, TN 37820

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michele Stevens

=====
From: Michele Stewart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Stewart

34 Dixmont Ave
Ewing, New Jersey 08618

=====
From: Michele Stump
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Stump
211 2nd St
Sturgis, Michigan 49091

=====
From: Michele Sweetser
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Sweetser

, 20170

=====
From: Michele Thompson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Thompson
6917 Walkup Ln
Austin, Texas 78747

=====
From: Michele Wray
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Wray
13123 Frank Ln
Stafford, Texas 77477

=====
From: Michele Wurgler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michele Wurgler
205 Bostwick Rd
Ithaca, New York 14850

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michele Young
283 Todd Rd Lot 01
Perry, GA 31069

=====
From: michell adams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michell Adams
2429 Harrison St
Grand Prairie, Texas 75051

=====
From: Michell Brasfield
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michell Brasfield
1377 Deer Run Way
Kettle Falls, WA 99141

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michell Brasfield

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Huber
22+e+preston+st+apt+b
Baltimore, MD 21202

=====
From: Michelle Agnew
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Agnew
1430 N Gould St
Sheridan, Wyoming 82801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Aguilar
4703+pineywood+dr+sw
Decatur, AL 35603

=====
From: Michelle Alcantara
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Keep your hands out of my internet

Please keep you invasive, noisy hands out of my internet activity.Â I am an intelligent person and donâ\200\231t need you to babysit my activities on the internet, or decide for me what is safe and what is not!

Â

Keep something in this country still free to my choosing please!!!

=====
From: Michelle Allen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Allen
5110 Azalea Trace Dr Apt 1705
Houston, Texas 77066

=====
From: Michelle Allgood
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Allgood
49 Ridge Dr
Lincoln, Alabama 35096

=====
From: Michelle ard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle ard
926 Smith Landing Rd
Lake City, South Carolina 29560

=====
From: Michelle Armitage
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Armitage
1103 Piedmont Park Rd
Taylors, South Carolina 29687

=====
From: michelle arnold
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle arnold
1125 Anchor Ln
Johnson City, Tennessee 37615

=====
From: Michelle Avery
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Avery
602 N Edgewood St
Greenville, Michigan 48838

=====
From: Michelle Avery
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Avery
602 N Edgewood St
Greenville, Michigan 48838

=====
From: Michelle Baker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Baker
7004 Joyful Noise Ln
Indian Trail, North Carolina 28079

=====
From: Michelle Baker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Baker
63 Cherry St
Glens Falls, New York 12801

=====
From: Michelle Bass
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bass
926 S Lipona Rd
Tallahassee, Florida 32304

=====
From: Michelle Beech
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Beech
23 Jimmy Cook Rd
Heidelberg, Mississippi 39439

=====
From: Michelle Bell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bell
223 E Scribner Ave
Du Bois, Pennsylvania 15801

=====
From: Michelle Bennett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bennett
1617 4th St NW Apt 211
Rochester, Minnesota 55901

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years - that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Bernaugh
7724 S Coles Ave Apt C
Chicago, IL 60649

=====

From: Michelle Billmaier
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Billmaier
22322 NE 157th St
Woodinville, WA 98077-7459

=====
From: michelle blackford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle blackford
638 Cherry St
Galion, Ohio 44833

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Bledsoe
529 Greene Road 626
Paragould, AR 72450

=====
From: michelle bogar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bogar
730 Viewland Ter
Akron, Ohio 44314

=====
From: Michelle Bolton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bolton
13100 S Forrestville Ave
Chicago, Illinois 60827

=====
From: michelle bouck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bouck
26 Orchard Ln
Grantsville, Utah 84029

=====
From: Michelle Bowen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bowen
508 N Blackhoof St
Wapakoneta, Ohio 45895

=====
From: Michelle Brandl
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Brandl
25769 400 St
Humphrey, Nebraska 68642

=====
From: Michelle Bright
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bright
137 W Wilson Ave Apt A
Ridgecrest, California 93555

=====
From: Michelle Brooks
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Brooks
933 State Route 545
Ashland, Ohio 44805

=====
From: Michelle Brown
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Brown

, California 92078

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job Ã¢\202-â\200\234 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service Ã¢\202-â\200\234 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Cummings
1569 Highway 102
Wrens, GA 30833

=====
From: Michelle Brozick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Brozick
1940 Grande Cir Apt 11
Fairfield, California 94533

=====
From: Michelle Brummet
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Brummet

506 Locust St
Miltonvale, Kansas 67466

=====
From: Michelle Bruse
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Bruse
5045 Collinwood Dr
Clarksville, Tennessee 37042

=====
From: Michelle Buerger
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment Re: WC Docket No. 14-28

As an Internet user who believes strongly in the importance of a free and open Internet, I urge the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet access as a telecommunications service, and save Net Neutrality.

In addition, the FCC should reject the proposed rules that would allow Internet service providers to divide the Internet into fast lanes for wealthy corporations and slow lanes for the rest of us.

Thank you.

Michelle Buerger
Wisconsin
Madison, WI 53711

[http://list.credoaction.com/wf/open?upn=CFwW2LiM8egNfp5WPKl72vck1Jm5GzqaOw5FucO4B5KUZLu
nyE9ChhUX98oZYIMh0PMC0ZsPtf3dhLuI-2BWQryrjUetSij6TFArxdwJbc5RATBsbeULV3uA-2B0IjRCs3cqP
SrXpFyTiNpkKYNCpRWAvAQ8lDhuqkopbJ-2Bu9gkq37VjjI5QAonCwHAb9pShor3s4EoWiBRiDQbabu0wlwt4g-
3D-3D](http://list.credoaction.com/wf/open?upn=CFwW2LiM8egNfp5WPKl72vck1Jm5GzqaOw5FucO4B5KUZLu
nyE9ChhUX98oZYIMh0PMC0ZsPtf3dhLuI-2BWQryrjUetSij6TFArxdwJbc5RATBsbeULV3uA-2B0IjRCs3cqP
SrXpFyTiNpkKYNCpRWAvAQ8lDhuqkopbJ-2Bu9gkq37VjjI5QAonCwHAb9pShor3s4EoWiBRiDQbabu0wlwt4g-
3D-3D)

=====
From: Michelle Buerger
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Buerger

Madison, WI 53711

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Clarke
1811 Nelson Ave Se
Grand Rapids, MI 49507

=====
From: Michelle Campos
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Campos
1302 Rice Ave
La Junta, Colorado 81050

=====
From: Michelle Cansler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:

â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Cansler
15330 Huffmaster Rd
North Fort Myers, Florida 33917

=====
From: Michelle Carter
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Carter
15121 Mitchell Pl
Denver, Colorado 80239

=====
From: Michelle Cendana
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Cendana
50 Luce Del Sole Unit 01
Henderson, Nevada 89011

From: Michelle Chavez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Chavez

4250 San Pablo Dam Rd Apt 17
El Sobrante, California 94803

=====
From: Michelle Clark
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Clark
21416 Dunn St
Wildomar, California 92595

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on

Internet providers ã\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Coash
8501 N Oliver St
Valley Center, KS 67147

=====
From: MICHELLE COBB
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHELLE COBB
1271 Midway Rd
Pickens, South Carolina 29671

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Lloyd
94+summerville+st
Buffalo+jct, VA 24529

=====
From: Michelle Contreras
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Contreras
612 W Nolana Ave Ste 220
McAllen, Texas 78504

=====
From: Michelle Craib
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Craib
1355 Pawtucket Blvd Apt 13
Lowell, Massachusetts 01854

=====
From: Michelle Craig
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Craig
123 Laurelwood Ct
Leesburg, Georgia 31763

=====
From: Michelle Cuellar
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Cuellar
1713 Vine St
Manistee, Michigan 49660

=====
From: Michelle Danao
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Danao
229 Morris St
Albany, New York 12208

=====
From: Michelle Daniele
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Daniele
324 Sheldon Ave
Staten Island, New York 10312

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle Rodriguez

Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2125 Kerria Ave
Zip: 78501

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michelle Delong
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Delong
1038 salisbury rd
columbus, Ohio 43204

=====
From: Michelle Diamond
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Diamond
503 Village Dr
Buzzards Bay, Massachusetts 02532

=====
From: Michelle Dingle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Dingle
3315 Croydon Rd
Gwynn Oak, Maryland 21207

=====
From: Michelle Doherty
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Doherty
PO Box 1828
Glenrock, Wyoming 82637

=====
From: Michelle Dornon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Dornon
1557 La Monarca Ln Apt 303
Chula Vista, California 91913

=====
From: Michelle Duarte
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility donâ\200\231t give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years â\200\223 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Donâ\200\231t ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Duarte
639 Elder Ct
Altamonte Springs, Florida 32714

=====
From: Michelle DuBois
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle DuBois
1150 Spruce St
Junction City, Oregon 97448

=====
From: Michelle DuFour
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle DuFour
905A Country Aire Dr
Round Rock, Texas 78664

=====

From: Michelle Ellis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Ellis
216 N Green St
Stephens, Arkansas 71764

=====
From: Michelle Emmelman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michelle Emmelman
12901 cambridge ave
Tampa, FL 33624

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michelle Emmelman

=====
From: Michel lee Munch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider wheth er the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michel lee Munch
40 California St Unit A1
Stratford, Connecticut 06615

=====
From: Michelle Evans
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Evans

, 84770

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Fallah
319 Tall Oak
Irvine, CA 92603

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Pentecost
1199 Hospital Rd Lot 03
Franklin, IN 46131

=====
From: Michelle Fields
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Fields
1120 W Fairview Dr Spc 01
Springfield, Oregon 97477

=====
From: Michelle Flores
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Flores
1636 Vernon Ct Apt 202
Green Bay, Wisconsin 54304

=====
From: michelle foss
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle foss
435 s. wisconsin ave.
villa park, Illinois 60181

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Guijarro
531 N Grandview Ave
Papillion, NE 68046

=====
From: Michelle Gaines
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Gaines
500 S Leach Ave Apt 11
Watonga, Oklahoma 73772

=====
From: Michelle Gaines
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Gaines
500 S Leach Ave Apt 11
Watonga, Oklahoma 73772

=====
From: Michelle Galo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Galo
802 N Yakima Ave
Tacoma, WA 98403-2422

=====
From: Michelle Garcia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Garcia
4908 Lone Tree Rd
Victoria, Texas 77901

=====
From: Michelle Gavrilesu
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committeeâ\200\231s pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. Thatâ\200\231s right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Gavrilesu
3741 81st St Apt F5
Jackson Heights, New York 11372

=====
From: Michelle George
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle George
11900 SE 44th
Bellevue, Florida 33420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Gerrard
790 Freeman Dr
Covington, GA 30016

=====
From: Michelle Gibson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Gibson
1241 Roger Ave Apt 94
Swansea, Illinois 62226

=====
From: Michelle Glenn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Glenn
262 Maidstone Cv
Cibolo, Texas 78108

=====
From: Michelle Goette
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCCâ\200\231s attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Goette
PO Box 232
Norwood Young America, Minnesota 55368

=====
From: Michelle Goode
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Goode
142 Leland Hill Rd
Sutton, Massachusetts 01590

=====
From: michelle guidry
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle guidry
11201 S Broadway Apt 01
Los Angeles, California 90061

=====
From: michelle guzman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle guzman
1715 Dalobo Blvd
Mission, Texas 78572

=====
From: Michelle Hall
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hall
445 Fontana Cir Apt 204
Oviedo, Florida 32765

=====
From: Michelle Hampton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hampton
441 Ocean Blvd
Keyport, New Jersey 07735

=====
From: Michelle Hardenbrook
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hardenbrook
203 Terry Pkwy
Terrytown, Louisiana 70056

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Harer
342+hastings+st
Williamsport, PA 17702

=====
From: MICHELLE Harrington
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHELLE Harrington
1030 Laurel Dr
Middletown, Pennsylvania 17057

=====
From: Michelle Hawthorne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hawthorne
25376 Industrial Hwy
Warren, Michigan 48089

=====
From: Michelle Hill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Hill
1109 County Road 71
Myrtle, Mississippi 38650

=====
From: Michelle Howell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Howell
1427 Morrison Rd
Big Clifty, Kentucky 42712

=====
From: Michelle Ishmael
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesnâ\200\231t need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Ishmael
653 W Woodland Ave
Springfield, Illinois 62704

=====
From: Michelle Jackson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Jackson
4817 Tacana St Apt 09
Los Angeles, California 90008

=====
From: michelle jeffries
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle jeffries
3061 Navarre Ave Apt G
Oregon, Ohio 43616

=====
From: Michelle Kalbaugh
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kalbaugh
17925 Veterans Memorial Hwy
Kingwood, West Virginia 26537

=====
From: Michelle Kemp
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kemp
5519 E Boniwood Turn
Clinton, Maryland 20735

=====
From: Michelle Kerr
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kerr
2619 London Ln
Belleville, Illinois 62221

=====
From: Michelle Kilgoe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kilgoe
26 Payson Ave
Boston, Massachusetts 02125

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ramie McGee
6909 Mid Cities Blvd
N Richlnd Hls, TX 76180

=====
From: Michelle Leo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Leo
686 Tuckahoe Rd
Vineland, New Jersey 08360

=====
From: Michelle Lewis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Lewis
1130 E 1st St
Long Beach, CA 90802-5668

=====
From: Michelle Linayao
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Linayao
12700 Schooner Beach Dr
Bakersfield, California 93311

=====
From: Michelle Linhart
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Linhart
24563 147th St
Leavenworth, Kansas 66048

=====
From: Michelle Linn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Linn
371 Mountain Trail Rd
Shirley, Arkansas 72153

=====
From: Michelle Long
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

I never thought I'd be writing this letter. I never thought this discussion would be required in the so-called greatest nation on Earth, one that embraces capitalism in all its glory and grime. Yet here I am, 29 years old, telling you something that you, an educated, ambitious, American citizen should already know.

Net neutrality should be protected at all costs, in all forms, for all people, at all times.

I am one of the members of the sixth generation of a family-owned manufacturing facility, one of the last to remain in the industry. Our company is an industry leader and has customers all over the world. We have achieved this with only one working shift a day and fewer than thirty employees. We are efficient, innovative, and ambitious, everything of which America prides itself. We started in England over 150 years ago and have operated in the USA during many of our country's most difficult times, supporting citizens and soldiers alike, making a path in an industry that has been steadily losing steam.

As the times changed, we launched a small, simple website, aimed mostly for current customers to view our selection but also to attract potential new customers. Some years we had more business than we could handle. Other years, orders were so small that we had to temporarily lay off employees or take a week or more off to let orders build. Our loyal customers and employees made sure we remained, and as the years have passed our customer base has spread from the USA to Australia, Germany, Italy, Spain, etc.

Now I read that my family's heritage, resiliently enduring hardship and hindrance, now has a new obstacle to face presented not by declining economics nor industry competition, but by corporate greed that would seek to make us pay to be equal, despite decades of proof that we deserve equal recognition. We have survived the Great Depression, family troubles, and complete destruction of facilities by fire twice, and now you say we should pay to have equal access to our customers, both current and potential.

I say NO. I say small business deserves an equal shot, especially those of us who have endured decade after decade, supporting our country, our soldiers, our citizens, our government, all while raising the bar for our industry. I say net neutrality is a fundamental American concept of our millenium. America wouldn't require a poor man to pay more to fight equally alongside a richer soldier, or tithe a poor man at a higher percentage to sit alongside a richer man in the pew. Why then would you ask us, who pay our yearly dues for equal access, to pay more to be equal? It's selfish greed, negligent forethought, and more importantly, it's simple anti-patriotism.

Make the best choice for America, its small businesses, its dedicated citizens and families, and protect net neutrality. America's future is at stake.

Michelle Long

37035

=====
From: Michelle Lopez Arrazola
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open,

and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Lopez Arrazola
6533 Stardust Ln
Orlando, Florida 32818

=====
From: Michelle Lucas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldnâ\200\231t the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCCâ\200\231s attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers â\200\223 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCCâ\200\231s rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Lucas
39 E Harrisville Rd
Dublin, New Hampshire 03444

=====

From: Michelle Lucas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Lucas
178 Albion St
Old Forge, Pennsylvania 18518

=====

From: Michelle Luevano
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Luevano
12320 W Denton Ave
Litchfield Park, Arizona 85340

=====
From: Michelle Mallozzi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Mallozzi
120 White Ave
Warwick, Rhode Island 02889

=====
From: MICHELLE MARTIN
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MICHELLE MARTIN
200 E Saint Avide St
Chalmette, Louisiana 70043

=====
From: Michelle martinez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle martinez
PO Box 7674
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87194

=====

From: Michelle Marty
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Marty
11913 Grovewood Ave
Thonotosassa, Florida 33592

=====

From: Michelle Mathia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Michelle Mathia
106 Terra Springs Drive
Volo, IL 60020

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

And may I ask will net neutrality help the government monitoring "US" the people?

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Michelle Mathia

=====
From: Michelle McIntosh
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle McIntosh
8985 S State Highway 03
Commiskey, Indiana 47227

=====
From: Michelle Merandi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Merandi
35903 Canyon Dr
Westland, Michigan 48186

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Mikuta

100 W Pine St
Smithville, MO 64089

=====
From: michelle monson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle monson
17925 Alburdis Ave
Artesia, California 90701

=====
From: Michelle Morandi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Morandi
4228 cougar hills way
Antelope , California 95843

=====
From: Michelle Morriss
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Morriss
9932 50th Ave 60366469
Baldwin, Iowa 52207

=====
From: Michelle Moses
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Moses
PO Box 32
Rudy, Arkansas 72952

=====
From: Michelle Moye
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Moye
414 Anderson Dr
Wilmington, Delaware 19801

=====
From: Michelle Mrosek
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Mrosek
1031 College Avenue Ext
Rock Hill, South Carolina 29732

=====
From: Michelle Mungia
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Mungia
1949 Avenida Del Mexico Unit 236
San Diego, California 92154

From: michelle myers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: RE: Do Not Regulate the Internet

I don't know what any of this is never replied to this or signed up for it please explain

On Sep 11, 2014 03:46 PM, "OpenInternet" <HYPERLINK "mailto: xxxx@xxxx.xxx" xxxx@xxxx.xxx> wrote:

Thank you, we have received your comments and will review them.

From: Michelle Necaise
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Necaïse
17151 Bobinger Rd
Kiln, Mississippi 39556

=====

From: Michelle Newburn
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Newburn
3359 N Hubbard Lake Rd
Spruce, Michigan 48762

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle Poulin-Northrup
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 329 Crest View Drive
Zip: 80422

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have "just enough Title II" any more than you can be "slightly pregnant."

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michelle Ortiz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Ortiz
8527 Plumeria Ave
Orlando, Florida 32825

=====
From: michelle owens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle owens
1234 N 36th St Unit 205
Phoenix, Arizona 85008

=====
From: Michelle Pachuta
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Pachuta
5 N Grant St Apt 10
Westmont, Illinois 60559

=====
From: michelle paradis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Paradis
14 Sullivan Ave
Enfield, Connecticut 06082

=====
From: Michelle Payne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Payne
106 Potomac Ct
Colonial Beach, Virginia 22443

=====
From: Michelle Pedrick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Pedrick
738 tutor Lane
Williamstown, New Jersey 08094

=====
From: Michelle Perrin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Perrin
620 Washington Ave
Lancaster, Ohio 43130

=====
From: Michelle Peterson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Peterson
N926 2nd Ln
Coloma, Wisconsin 54930

=====
From: michelle pillon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle pillon
po box 213
jamestown, Rhode Island 02835

=====
From: Michelle Pitt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Pitt
4505 SE Windsor Ct
Portland, OR 97206-1659

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Castillo
2961 Terrace Way
Martinez, CA 94553

=====
From: Michelle Posey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Posey
8815 Highway 22
Montevallo, Alabama 35115

=====

From: Michelle Prengler
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Prengler
7810 Mason Dells Dr
Dallas, Texas 75230

=====
From: Michelle Pribeherber
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Pribeherber
214 Park St N
Minnesota Lake, Minnesota 56068

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Anaya
1017+stanton+pl
Clovis, NM 88101

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michelle R. Dennis
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 901 S. Mariana St.
Zip: 85281

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Michelle Reay
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Reay
1 Sarles Ln
Pleasantville, New York 10570

=====
From: Michelle Ruithoff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Ruithoff
1635 Water Oak Rd
Bunnell, Florida 32110

=====
From: Michelle Rusiecki
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Rusiecki
8641 Florence Ave
Angola, New York 14006

=====
From: Michelle Sandoval
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Sandoval
740 E Warm Springs Rd Apt 324
Henderson, Nevada 89015

=====
From: Michelle Shaffer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obamaâ\200\231s political agenda, then it is no longer an â\200\234independent agency,â\200\235 and it is no longer an â\200\234expert agency.â\200\235 If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obamaâ\200\231s White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Shaffer
905 2nd St Apt 11
Santa Monica, California 90403

=====

From: Michelle Slaton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Slaton
3023 Keith St
Morgan City, LA 70380-2242

=====
From: Michelle Smith
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Smith
495 Mallalieu Dr SE
Brookhaven, Mississippi 39601

=====

From: Michelle Standfuss
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Standfuss
PO Box 464
Kirksville, MO 63501-0464

=====
From: Michelle Stauber
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Stauber
6101 Alcoa Rd Apt 1327
Benton, Arkansas 72015

=====

From: Michelle Stevens
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Stevens
81131 Tippecanoe Rd
Tippecanoe, Ohio 44699

=====
From: Michelle Stokes
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Stokes
94 Christina Ave
Smithfield, North Carolina 27577

=====
From: Michelle Tarte
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Tarte
160 Jerusalem Ave
Massapequa, New York 11758

=====
From: Michelle Terrazas
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Terrazas
3843 Morales St
San Antonio, Texas 78237

=====
From: Michelle Tisdale
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPAâ\200\231s draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Tisdale
632 Upper Darby Rd
Jackson, Mississippi 39212
=====

From: Michelle Tozer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Michelle Tozer
19 Kennedy St
North Dartmouth, MA 02747-2720

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Tsai
1369 Vista Grande
Millbrae, CA 94030

=====
From: Michelle Turley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Turley
522 Hathaway St
Owensboro, Kentucky 42303

=====
From: Michelle Vanderveer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Vanderveer
2011 W Sandusky St

Findlay, Ohio 45840

=====
From: Michelle Van Ginkel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Van Ginkel
1304 SW Twin Gates Dr
Ankeny, Iowa 50023

=====
From: michelle vittetoe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Vittetoe
3109 Highway 61 E
Luttrell, Tennessee 37779

=====
From: Michelle Vittetoe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Vittetoe
3109 Highway 61 E
Luttrell, Tennessee 37779

=====
From: Michelle Walker
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear â\200\223 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider wheth er the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Walker
629 N Iowa St
Olathe, Kansas 66061

=====
From: michelle walters
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle walters
8544 Valencia Village Ln Apt 102
Orlando, Florida 32825

=====
From: Michelle Watts
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Watts
7431 W Woodlawn Dr
Frankfort, Illinois 60423

=====
From: Michelle Weimer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Weimer
647 N Miami Ave
Cleves, Ohio 45002

=====
From: Michelle Wetherell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Wetherell
14 Ashmount St
Lewiston, Maine 04240

=====
From: Michelle Wilkshood
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Wilkshood
1146 37th St
Newport News, Virginia 23607

From: Michelle Willett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Willett
5193 Main St
Gadsden, Alabama 35903

=====
From: michelle williams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michelle williams
411 Buckingham Rd Apt 432
Richardson, Texas 75081

=====
From: Michelle Williams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Williams
406 Bell St
Elizabeth City, North Carolina 27909

=====
From: Michelle Wise
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Wise
3209 Beaumont Ct
Bakersfield, California 93304

=====

From: Michelle Woods
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Woods
10328 New Bedford Dr
Dallas, Texas 75217

=====
From: Michelle Wruck
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Wruck
8 Drew Drive
Eastport, New York 11941

=====
From: Michelle Yarborough
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Yarborough
10000 Eastshire Ln
Knoxville, Tennessee 37922

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michelle zahrte
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5962 harrison street
Zip: 91710

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: Michelle Zebrack
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Zebrack
1339 E 3rd Ave
Salt Lake City, Utah 84103

=====
From: Michelle Zillgitt
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michelle Zillgitt
1000 S 86th St
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53214

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Williams
1006 H St Apt B
Bakersfield, CA 93304

=====
From: Michell Paul
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michell Paul
5461 Regency Woods Mnr
Imperial, Missouri 63052

=====
From: Michell VanArsdale
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michell VanArsdale
89 Evelyn Dr
Melbourne, Florida 32934

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Fernando Aguiar
2117 Border Ave
Torrance, CA 90501

=====
From: Michellyn Ellis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michellyn Ellis
819 Humboldt St
Manhattan, Kansas 66502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jason Thronton
5435 Haig Pl Ne
Kingston, WA 98346

=====
From: Miche Swofford
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miche Swofford
1114 E Frederick St
Independence, Missouri 64050

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Naceanceno
14422 Castle Cove Ln
Houston, TX 77044

=====
From: michial weatherly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

michial weatherly
1208 W 7th St S
Newton, Iowa 50208

=====

From: Michie Basilio
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michie Basilio
145 California Ct
Mission Viejo, California 92692

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Bradley Belrose
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 548 Lovett Ave
Zip: 49506

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nathan Trombley
27590 Wisteria St
Harrison Twp, MI 48045

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kyle Micheal
4333 Alderbrook Ct
Las Vegas, NV 89103

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Valentine

47+new+main+st
Haverstraw, NY 10927

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Sheldon
3640 Se Rocket Ln
Port Orchard, WA 98367

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

John Sinutko
2176 Oakwood Dr
Troy, MI 48085

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Famurewa
2707 Park Ave Apt E
Saint Louis, MO 63104

=====
From: Michsel Doyle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michsel Doyle
146 Pine Place
Staten Island, New York 10304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Dorothee M Deuling
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 685 S Baldwin Ave
Zip: 49349

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Terry Maurer
18500 Campbell Rd
Comins, MI 48619

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Naughton
1667+portland+st
Klamath+falls, OR 97601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Escano
4881 Southgate Pkwy
Myrtle Beach, SC 29579

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Joseph Eccles
8127+fairview+ave
La+mesa, CA 91941

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rickie Severt
Po+Box+235
Jefferson, NC 28640

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Myron Thompson
228 Nixon Dr
New Castle, IN 47362

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mickey Pruitt
2801+13th+ave+sw
Hickory, NC 28602

=====

From: Mickey Davenport
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mickey Davenport

, Tennessee 37095

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jeni McCush
2946+sw+wayne+ave+apt+23
Topeka, KS 66611

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vickie Anderson
1084 Pleasant St
Springfield, OR 97477

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Thompson
2806 Mabel St
Berkeley, CA 94702

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Kang Chiu
44 Cherry Ln
Carle Place, NY 11514

=====
From: Mickey Price
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mickey Price

1210 County Road 1605
Rusk, Texas 75785

=====
From: Mick Foster
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mick Foster
5534 Royal St
Crestview, Florida 32539

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mick Howe
4762 Miller Rd
Columbus, GA 31909

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mickie Clark
707 Maple St
Pana, IL 62557

=====
From: Mickie Enders
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mickie Enders
13517 NE 6th Ave
Vancouver, Washington 98685

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mickie Dragos
3812+anna+lee+ct
Modesto, CA 95356

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mary Reardon
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1555 21st St East Bradenton FL
Zip: 34208

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Micki Watson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micki Watson
1016 W 7th Ave
Emporia, Kansas 66801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dusty Trader
16444+ritchie+ave
Sand+lake, MI 49343

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Donna Mae Peck
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 200 mountain Lane, P O Box 362

Zip: 05822

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mark Richter
21131 Broadwell Ave
Torrance, CA 90502

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micky Solomon
104 01/02 Thompson Ave
Poteau, OK 74953

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gonzalo Hernandez
8188 W 11th St
Tracy, CA 95304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gary Englehart
1308 E Downing St
Mesa, AZ 85203

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mckenzie Singletary
10108 231st Ave E
Buckley, WA 98321

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chad Collier
14294+n+mission+pointe+loop
Nampa, ID 83651

=====
From: Micole Rogers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Micole Rogers
240 N Aurelius Rd
Mason, Michigan 48854

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Timothy Goode Sr.
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1293 Park West Dr #04
Zip: 27834

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan Hands off the Net approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Cruz
21301 Saticoy St
Canoga Park, CA 91304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Cowan
2812+central+ave
Alameda, CA 94501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Darius Dyke
1309+ne+9th+st
Battle+ground, WA 98604

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nathan Nelson
230+irving+st
Lincoln, NE 68521

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dani Greenland
2303 Virginia Way
Elko, NV 89801

=====
From: Middleton Jessup
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the peopleâ\200\231s representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Middleton Jessup
2484 Liverpool Dr
Charleston, South Carolina 29414

=====
From: Midge Boudreaux
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Midge Boudreaux
3334 Buckingham Ave
Burton, Michigan 48529

=====
From: Midge Jacobs
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Midge Jacobs
541 Linkwood St
Port Arthur, Texas 77640

=====
From: Midge O'Brien
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Midge O'Brien
100 Parkview Ln
Savoy, IL 61874-8100

=====
From: midget- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Iain Martin
29w711 Waynewood Dr

West Chicago, IL 60185

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Aaron Lewis
5 Valley Ct
Chester, NY 10918

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Aymara Crespo
23a 7th Ave
E Rockland Ky, FL 33040

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Adam Shutts
417 Oakwood Ave
Bryan, OH 43506

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Jackson
455 Stelton Rd
Xenia, OH 45385

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Brian Seeley
2222 W Eisenhower Rd
Six Lakes, MI 48886

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
James Boutwell
2875+w+14th+st
Sulphur, OK 73086

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Chris Lago
2645 Pisgah Rd
Perry, FL 32347

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Darren Slone
6526 Bellefontaine Rd
Lima, OH 45804

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dawn La Vigne
2871+longmeadow+dr
Trenton, MI 48183

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
David Banuelos
2054 Martin Luther King Jr Way
Berkeley, CA 94704

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear -\202-\234 investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Eric Leasure

719 N Judd Ave
Chandler, AZ 85226

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rahmel
1339+dawson+st
Toledo, OH 43605

=====
From: midori furutate
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

midori furutate

New York, NY 10040

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Dwayne Davis
1714 S Barbier Ave
Thibodaux, LA 70301

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nick Smith
1098 Old Red Star Rd
Wesson, MS 39191

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Chris Forbeck
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 2225 Hwy E Silex,MO
Zip: 63377

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Gerard Mieczkowski
13651+Linnhurst+St
Detroit, MI 48205

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Migdalia Navarro
3262 W 82nd St
Cleveland, OH 44102

=====

From: Migdalia Velez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Migdalia Velez
4401 SW 14th St
Miami, Florida 33134

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers - just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Gilbert
51 Kingsrow Dr
Camdenton, MO 65020

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Frank Berg
1108 Cowesett Rd
Warwick, RI 02886

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Tran
Po Box 4006
Ms State Univ, MS 39762

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jason Moulton
1200 Magnolia Ave Apt L
Chico, CA 95926

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The

FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Nikkon Andrew Seguerra
516 San Pasqual Dr
Alhambra, CA 91801

=====
From: Migleanette Torres
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Migleanette Torres
5112 Laurel Ln
North Richland Hills, Texas 76180

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Marc Simpson
747+Cherry+St
Charlotte, MI 48813

=====
From: Mignely Siffort
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Donâ\200\231t destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mignely Siffort
3475 Sheridan St Ste 210
Hollywood, Florida 33021

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rulemaking, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present url.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jaun Ford
10112+astill+ct
Waldorf, MD 20603

=====
From: Miguel Aceves
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Miguel Aceves
1782 Blando Lane
Sam Ysidro, CA 92173

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Miguel Aceves

=====
From: Miguel A Martinez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel A Martinez
1501 Andrea St
Alice, Texas 78332

=====
From: Miguel A Medina
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel A Medina
914 E 21st St
Bakersfield, California 93305

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Mosqueda
1316 Spruce Ave
Longmont, CO 80501

=====
From: Miguel Ayon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Ayon
137 Rodriguez Ave
Shafter, California 93263

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Cajas
2126+sand+dollar+dr
Richmond, CA 94804
=====

From: Miguel Catalan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Catalan
1631 Lucas Ave
Wichita Falls, Texas 76301

=====

From: miguel chacon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers - just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miguel chacon
15543 Crescent Ave
Allen Park, Michigan 48101

=====
From: Miguel De La Corte
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel De La Corte
25 Pleasant Ave
Clifton, New Jersey 07013

=====
From: Miguel Dial
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Dial
4950 Ringold Dr N
Mobile, Alabama 36693

=====
From: Miguel Dominicis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Dominicis
2145 N Dixie Hwy Lot 03
Lima, Ohio 45801

=====
From: Miguel Guadalupe
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Guadalupe
13 Simons Ave
Waterbury, Connecticut 06706

=====
From: Miguel Hurtado
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: throughout

HYPERLINK "<http://www.studiobombardieri.it/h0yz1a2m3k4o5i6j7.php>"Miguel Hurtado

From: Miguel Hurtado 12.09.2014 18:18:39

=====
From: Miguel Loera
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Loera
1576 Royal St
Arvin, California 93203

=====
From: miguel lopez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

miguel lopez
2025 N College Ave Lot 39
Fort Collins, Colorado 80524

=====
From: Miguel Nerys
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Nerys
3908 Spring Breeze Dr
Orlando, Florida 32829

=====
From: Miguel Ramos
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the â\200\234nuclear option,â\200\235 because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, itâ\200\231s only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Ramos
11512 Cotner Ave
Bakersfield, California 93312

=====
From: Miguel Rosales
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility donâ\200\231t give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years â\200\223 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Donâ\200\231t ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Rosales
14021 SW 320th St
Homestead, Florida 33033

=====

From: Miguel Valentin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Valentin
4A Crown Ct
Ballston Spa, New York 12020

=====
From: Miguel Valle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miguel Valle
1439 N Avers Ave
Chicago, Illinois 60651

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mignyon Bouchard
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: Silver Creek, Ms.
Zip: 39663

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Mik
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: My opinion and concern

Do not allow the internet speeds to be adjusted or varied by the carriers This is the last free speech platform available

Michael Morales
24 Lincoln Ave
Pawcatuck, Ct 06379

Sent from my iPad

=====
From: Mika Culhane
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mika Culhane
232 Robert Quigley Dr Apt 03
Scottsville, New York 14546

=====
From: Mika Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mika Jones
7401 SW 55th Ave
Miami, Florida 33143

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikal Edwards
6130 13th St Nw
Washington, DC 20011

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mikale Marshall
5722 Nahant Ave
Cincinnati, OH 45224

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Kirk
21 Gary Ave
Maryville, IL 62062

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Timeka Lucio
3104+bowl+creek+blvd
Virginia+bch, VA 23452

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Coolman
204+saint+jacques+st
Worthington, OH 43085

=====
From: Mike
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net neutrality

I believe this should be protected, it's a great medium for commerce , education , and global communities Sent from my iPhone

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rawson
961+loma+linda+dr
Klamath+falls, OR 97601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rivera
3017+w+running+deer+trl
Phoenix, AZ 85083

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Pollardo
2603 88th Dr Ne
Lake Stevens, WA 98258

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Cumming
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 4254 queen ave s
Zip: 55410

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Sponaugle
3717+state+st
Weirton, WV 26062

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Barron

108 Brooke Ave
Magnolia, NJ 08049

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mccoy
8265 Oakwood Ave
Hesperia, CA 92345

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Montgomery
44 Granite Ridge Rd
Redding, CT 06896

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Morales
7224 Cardenas Way
Sacramento, CA 95828

=====
From: Mike Abale
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Abale
1935 Gardiner Ln
Louisville, KY 40205-2823

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Micheal Atkins
10844+e+33rd+ct
Tulsa, OK 74146

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Allen
3304+calle+del+s
Carlsbad, CA 92009

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Brennan
13 E Pineview Dr
Round Lk Park, IL 60073

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Liz Miller
815+wisconsin+st
Hudson, WI 54016

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Durham
1914 E 24th St
Muncie, IN 47302

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amber Montoya
4512+solecito+loop
Santa+fe, NM 87507

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Arthur
760 W Possum Ln
Benson, AZ 85602

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition

in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Barbee
11397 Market Ave Nw
Uniontown, OH 44685

=====
From: Mike Barela
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Barela
1909 S Kipling St Apt B
Lakewood, Colorado 80227

=====
From: Mike Barnett
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Barnett
Box 704
Smyrna, Tennessee 37167

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Bastyr
5093+credit+river+dr
Savage, MN 55378

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Beers
Po Box 796 Box 796
Pilot Rock, OR 97868

=====
From: Mike Bell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Bell
200 Brown Avenue
Mount Gretna, Pennsylvania 17064

=====
From: Mike Benitez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Benitez
177 Java St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-1703

=====
From: Mike Bettis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Bettis
706 Holsey Dr
Noble, Oklahoma 73068

=====
From: mike- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Boland
Email: mike- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 9229 NW 24th Lane
Zip: 32606

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Boldman
2323 Curtis St
Denver, CO 80205

=====
From: Mike Bolton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Bolton
1892 Avenida Aragon
Oceanside, California 92056

=====
From: Mike Bonvicino
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Of the million or so comments the Federal Communications Commission received on its rule making, did any make an evidence-based case that the Internet is not free, open, and functioning well? Evidence matters. And there simply is no evidence to back up the dire claims of disaster if the Internet is left unregulated. The unregulated Internet is probably the greatest success story of the century. The body of evidence is very clear - investment and innovation aimed at winning customers is the most powerful force for good when it comes to developing the Internet. Tens of billions of private dollars pour into its networks every year, even in a bad economy. The only reason to change this is to appease a small left-wing political faction that is ideologically obsessed with government control over the economy. If the FCC has descended to the depths where it ignores evidence so it can appease an ignorant, angry left-wing political faction, then it is time to consider whether the agency should continue to exist in its present form.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation - just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Bonvicino
2601 Jerden Ave
Granite City, Illinois 62040

=====
From: Mike Boone
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Boone
769 Lym Dr
Virginia Beach, Virginia 23464

=====
From: Mike Bowman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Bowman
529 Depot
Meridian, Texas 76665

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Bracken
10838 Pleasant Valley Rd
Penn Valley, CA 95946

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Brothers
800 Forest St
Hastings, MN 55033

=====
From: Mike Byrne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Byrne
174 live oak
new braunfels, TX 78130

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Byrne

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Cerat
78 Sylvan St
Danvers, MA 01923

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Cwoidrock
34782+n+peterson+ave
Ingleside, IL 60041

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along -- no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Cabael
42 Frisch Rd
Salinas, CA 93907

=====

From: Mike Canaday
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Canaday
2220 North 42nd Street
Waco, TX 76710

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Canaday

=====

From: Mike Carlson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

Dear FCC, LEAVE THE INTERNET ALONE!!!!!!!

Mike Carlson

61528

=====
From: Mike Carroll
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Carroll

, 35401

=====
From: Mike Cerick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Cerick
24 Lum Avenue
Chatham, New Jersey 07928

=====
From: Mike Chapman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Chapman
55208 Highway 112
Port Angeles, Washington 98363

=====
From: Mike Childers
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Childers
9237 big branch rd
Virgie, KY 41572

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Childers

=====
From: mike cooper
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike cooper
2578 Little Cabin Crk
Vanceburg, Kentucky 41179

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mike Schmitt
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 3922 65th Street
Zip: 49423

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Curtis
501 W Poplar St
W Terre Haute, IN 47885

=====
From: mike danchuk
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike danchuk

, 18901

=====
From: Mike Danko
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Danko
255 Main St
White Plains, New York 10601

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Darby
111 Leigh Ln
Carrollton, GA 30117

=====

From: Mike Deal
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: openinternet

Please keep the internet open, I have already been experiencing the slowdown and its very obvious that it would not be the same normal speed as always which to me is the fraud of the whole IP providers claim to have two speeds for consumers and commercial businesses.

MDeal

Mike Deal Pre-press

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael dehart
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1519 crab creek rd, hendersonville, NC
Zip: 28739

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Demay
1120 James Pl
El Cerrito, CA 94530

=====
From: Mike Dempsey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Dempsey
722 Park St
Baraboo, Wisconsin 53913

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Dolezal
1849 Duck Lake Dr
Eagle River, WI 54521

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Disalvo
364+n+palo+cedro+dr
Diamond+bar, CA 91765

=====
From: Mike Donnelly
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Donnelly
454 Zion Rd
Seymour, MO 65746-9292

=====
From: Mike Dubreuil
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Dubreuil
14022 Rancho Del Villa
Lakeside, California 92040

=====
From: Mike Dzidek
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Dzidek
114 South Ave

Gettysburg, Pennsylvania 17325

=====
From: Mike Eddy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Eddy
2125 Waverly Pl N
Seattle, WA 98109-2420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Berger
2905 Monika Ln
Taylor, TX 76574

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Elsaadi
1 Sandstone Ct
Medford, NJ 08055

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Fox
13930 Shoemaker Ave
Norwalk, CA 90650

From: Mike Ferguson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Ferguson
418 W Pleasant St
Mankato, MN 56001-2509

=====

From: Mike Fontenot
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Fontenot
1544 Old Park Rd
Ville Platte, Louisiana 70586

=====

From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Fort
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 504 N Shadow Lakes Drive Willow Spring, NC
Zip: 27592

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

The Internet has ALWAYS been free.... why all the sudden is it necessary to start charging a fee??? oh, that's right, gotta figure a way to bring down the national debt eh?? It's just another excuse to get revenue out of everyone....Government is pathetic. You can't balance a budget , or keep 01 million plus illegal immigrants from crossing our borders, you also have our country in $17 trillion dollar debt, and every year you pat yourselves on the back and give yourselves a nice big fat pay raise while there are homeless people living on the street, people jobless and starving???? Do us all a favor.....everyone in Congress..... YOU WORK FOR US THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.....WE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE "DON'T" WORK FOR YOU !!!!!!! .so, that being said.....forfeit your entire paychecks for the next ten years to pay down the debt, raise the minimum wage to 15/hour for everyone across the board, quit taxing big business, bring jobs back to America, round up and deport all the illegal immigrants, START PROTECTING OUR BORDERS !!!!!!! send all ILLEGALS back to Mexico, cut back on defense budget, bring that down from 640 billion to 100 billion, quit sticking your noses in other countries business, quit giving aid to all these countries that don't even like us, and GET YOUR DAMNED ACT TOGETHER !!!!!!!

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Fortin
1 Upper Downs Dr
Danielson, CT 06239

=====
From: Mike Franklin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Franklin

, 75262

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Frick
Po Box 1471
Nashville, IN 47448

=====
From: mike frobenius
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

mike frobenius
509 s. elm
mcpherson, KS 67460

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current hands off regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
mike frobenius

=====
From: mike frobenius
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

mike frobenius
509 S Elm St
McPherson, KS 67460

=====
From: Mike Fugno
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Fugno

Mesa, AZ 85207

=====
From: mike ganger
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

mike ganger
5717 stone drive
fort worth, TX 76180

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
mike ganger

=====
From: mikegarvey
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open internet issue

I believe that there should be rules in place to protect the internet for all. I am opposed to letting industry and foreign countries have any hand in controlling the Internet. The telecommunications carriers concept of fast and slow lanes doesn't appear to publish it's shortcomings.Â

Thank you.Â

Sent from my Verizon Wireless 4G LTE smartphone

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
April Falnigan
5732 W Farkas Rd
Plant City, FL 33567

=====

From: Mike Giamalva
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Giamalva
16696 E. Cooper Rd.
Independence, LA 70443

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current â\200\234hands offâ\200\235 regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called â\200\234net neutralityâ\200\235 rule, which would replace the relative freedom of todayâ\200\231s internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing a net neutrality and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed net neutrality rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called net neutrality.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Giamalva

=====
From: Mike Gibson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Gibson
1404 Nantucket dr
Richardson, Texas 75080

=====
From: Mike Gilbert
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
â\200\234What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control.â\200\235 In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Gilbert
5559 Maple Grove Ave
Blanchester, Ohio 45107

=====
From: Mike Gladue
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCCâ\200\231s sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Gladue
1315 Rivershyre Pkwy
Lawrenceville, Georgia 30043

=====
From: mike goward
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike goward
1008 Forest Run
Hercules, California 94547

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cyril Greber
16667+mustang+dr
Springville, CA 93265

=====
From: Mike Green
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Green
410 S Newland St
Lakewood, Colorado 80226

=====
From: Mike Greenlee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Greenlee
721 Walnut
Burbank, California 91501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Miguel Griego
156 S Clark Dr
El Paso, TX 79905

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mikel Groesbeck
8251 Kirkville Rd
Kirkville, NY 13082

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Tate
538 River Chase Trl
Duluth, GA 30096

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amy Guinn
126 Greenlawn Dr
Hendersonville, TN 37075

=====
From: mike gurganious
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

mike gurganious
110 Pine Needle Rd
Willard, NC 28478
xxxx@xxxx.xxx

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Haley
118 Parnell Ln
Royersford, PA 19468

=====
From: mike hammond
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike hammond
976 Morning Glory Ln
Shelbyville, Kentucky 40065

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Harvey
404 Paladin Dr Apt F
Greenville, NC 27834

=====
From: MIKE HEAD
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIKE HEAD
160 Surrey Dr
Glen Ellyn, Illinois 60137

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mike Heffernan
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 325 King Rd., North Brunswick, NJ
Zip: 08902

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be a little pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: MIke Hennard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIke Hennard
8568 E River Rd
Caneadea, New York 14717

=====
From: MIKE HENSY
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and

urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIKE HENSY
5825 Fair Wind St
Fort Worth, Texas 76135

=====
From: Mike Higgins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Let's keep the internet open and equal -- open and equal are basic principals of any democratic society. We owe it to our children and grandchildren! Let us not become an oligarch like Russia has become!

Thank you,

Mike Higgins
7054 Jackson Dr
San Diego, CA 92119-3007

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Higgins
18 Trowbridge Path
West Yarmouth, MA 02673

=====
From: Mike Hnatiak
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Hnatiak
5258 Bentbrook Dr
Sylvania, Ohio 43560

=====
From: Mike Holcomb
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Holcomb
505 E Avenue A
Newberry, Michigan 49868

=====
From: Mike Howell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Howell
RR 02 Box 26
Hooker, Oklahoma 73945

=====
From: Mike Hufhand
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Hufhand
8150 Crook Drive North
Indianapolis, Indiana 46256

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Inman
435+royal+st
Mcdonough, GA 30253

=====
From: Mike Isper
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: comment

Hello,

I am writing to express my concerns over the potential slow down and demise of net neutrality. The internet should be considered neutral in its content delivery speed such as it is neutral in content itself. Broadband providers should not dictate speeds and whom receives content via "fast and slow lanes" based upon business models, subscriptions, or hosting content from competition.

The digital world is a global avenue of entertainment, information, communication, and commerce and should remain barrier free and all providers should subscribe to the principle of net neutrality.

Regards,
Mike Isper
1551 North Washington Street
Highland Springs, VA 23075

=====
From: MIKE J
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

Keep the internet free and open to all people without any individual or business being favored over any other.

=====

From: Mike James
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike James
2923 Crossview Dr Apt B14
Houston, Texas 77063

=====
From: Mike James
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike James
11632 Admiralty Way Unit F
Everett, Washington 98204

=====
From: Mike Jaroszko
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Jaroszko
317 Angelo Dr.
Montgomery, NY 12549

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Jaroszko

=====
From: Mike Jones
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Jones
2204 Ruth Dr
Poplar Bluff, Missouri 63901

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Junkermeier
227+s+johnson+st
Iowa+city, IA 52240

=====
From: Mike Justice
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Justice
518 Shiloh Rd
Seneca, South Carolina 29678

=====
From: Mike Kehl
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Kehl
372 Lombard St
San Francisco, CA 94133-2415

=====
From: mike killion
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike killion
295 Iris St
Broomfield, Colorado 80020

=====
From: Mike Koke
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Koke
1131 Jefferies Rd
Springfield, Illinois 62707

=====
From: Mike Landen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Landen
42 Venus Dr
Shrewsbury, Massachusetts 01545

=====
From: Mikel Conner
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikel Conner
366 Acree Acres Rd.
Johnson City, Texas 78636

=====
From: Mikel Culbertson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikel Culbertson
1459 Virginia Pine Drive
Longs, South Carolina 29568

=====
From: mikel Darling
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mikel Darling
2289 w 25th
los angeles, California 90018

=====
From: Mike Lee
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

As an IT professional, I've seen the rise of the internet in my work career. I've seen how a free and open internet has given rise to business and the growth of our economy. We've seen how the walled garden to the internet has failed dramatically. Our country is in a shameful place in the world with the current health and speed of our internet. We need now more than ever greater competition in this sector. We need to stop treating the internet as an option like getting cable TV and recognize that it's a utility that is vitally important to lives of all our citizens, guests and companies that do business here in the US. Every packet of information should be treated equally. If usage limits are necessary, then even more so, every packet should be treated equally no matter the source or destination. Make Net Neutrality Law, Make internet service a utility and by all means do NOT allow the further consolidation of internet service providers or cellphone carriers.

Mike Lee

32828

=====
From: Mikele Grant
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikele Grant
11405 Claremont Ave NE
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87112

=====
From: Mikel Graff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikel Graff
2363 Chapel Ridge Pl Apt 21C
Salina, Kansas 67401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mikel Kozak
805 Lakeview Dr
Cortland, OH 44410

=====
From: Mikell Tamerro
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikell Tamerro
7847 Northway Dr
Hanover Park, Illinois 60133

=====

From: mikel mac
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job -- providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service -- it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mikel mac
507 N Deer Creek Dr E
Leland, Mississippi 38756

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Loring
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1051 Jeremy swamp road southbury, ct
Zip: 06488

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Re: RE: Open Internet Reply Comment

I apologize for this automatic reply to your email.

To control spam, I now allow incoming messages only from senders I have approved beforehand.

If you would like to be added to my list of approved senders, please fill out the short request form (see link below). Once I approve you, I will receive your original message in my inbox. You do not need to resend your message. I apologize for this one-time inconvenience.

Click the link below to fill out the request:

<https://webmail.pas.earthlink.net/wam/addme?a=xxxx@xxxx.xxx&id=11e4-3aa1-4d8a2bb8-beaa-00144fe24bb8>

=====
From: Mike Losito
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Losito
111 Arrow Head Way
Cary, North Carolina 27513

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Louangsana
714 S Perkins St
Fort Worth, TX 76103

=====
From: Mike Lowery
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Lowery
219 32nd St
Newport Beach, California 92663

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers 202-234 just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
John Ewing
430+morning+glory+dr
Billings, MT 59102

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Lucero
124 Merideth Ln
Longmont, CO 80501

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Lynn
813 Holders Siding Rd
Jefferson, GA 30549

=====
From: Mike M
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike M
1370 41st Ave
San Francisco, CA 94122-1207

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael McNeely
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 82093 miner rd
Zip: 32097

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: mike madden
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike madden
16727 Bennett rd
Mount Vernon, Washington 98273

=====
From: Mike MaderaK
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike MaderaK
220 s 74th street
Kansas City, Kansas 66111

=====
From: mike maggard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

No Content Found -- Please specify some content

mike maggard

37130

=====
From: Mike Martinson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Martinson
24745 county road 119
st charles, Minnesota 55972

=====
From: Mike Maxcy
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Maxcy
PO Box 577
Paris, Texas 75461

=====
From: Mike Mayfield
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Mayfield

, 45249

=====
From: Mike Mcaninch
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Mcaninch
4329 English Ave

Erie, Pennsylvania 16510

=====
From: mike mccallum
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike mccallum
xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Apple Valley, California 92307

=====
From: Mike McCampbell
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike McCampbell
307 Labelle St
Pittsburgh, PA 15211-1343

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Mccuin
3326 Colfax Ave N
Minneapolis, MN 55412

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mcdougald 1st
522 23rd St
Niagara Falls, NY 14301

=====
From: Mike Mcdaniel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Mcdaniel
930 Hobbs St
Clayton, North Carolina 27520

=====
From: Mike McDougall
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike McDougall
P.O. Box 56
Harper, Texas 78631

=====
From: Mike Mclellan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Mclellan
2794 Shady Grove Rd
Carrollton, Georgia 30116

=====
From: Mike McVay
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike McVay
1412 S Greeley Hwy Lot 47
Cheyenne, Wyoming 82007

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Medwetz
3876+w+19th+st
Cleveland, OH 44109

=====
From: Mike Melton
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Melton
1208 N Mary
Mahomet, Illinois 61853

=====
From: Mike Meltz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Meltz
N3839 Cummings Rd
Hortonville, Wisconsin 54944

=====
From: Mike Merchant
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissioners

This is all about GREED! The Internet should be open to all. No single company should have advantages over other companies. Whatever happened to the idea that good service and support should determine who gets the biggest share? Keep the Internet Neutral, please!

Mike Merchant

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: mike mwsser
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 702 e madison
Zip: 56363

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Mike Mickle
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Mickle
12529 Gayton Bluffs Ln
Henrico, Virginia 23233

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jose Quinones
6774+Ash+St
Frisco, TX 75034

=====
From: Mike Milem
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Milem
1900 William Way
Concord, CA 94520

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Milem

=====
From: Mike Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Miller

, Washington 98229

=====
From: Mike Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject:

Keep the internet free and fair for all

^

=====
From: Mike Miller
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet

Please do not allow internet providers to start a slow and fast lane. This will lead to only more income disparity in this country.

Thank you,

^

Mike Miller

Noblesville, IN

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Monahan
17013 Sunny Hollow Rd
Edmond, OK 73012

=====
From: Mike Montague
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Montague
926 NE 87th TR
Kansas city, MO 64155

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Montague

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Montoya
548+bond+dr
Perris, CA 92570

=====
From: Mike Morris
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCCâ\200\231s attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Morris
1079 Bird St
Oroville, California 95965
=====

From: Mike Muche
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Muche
3231 Pontiac St
La Crescenta, California 91214

=====

From: Mike Muche
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Mike Muche
3231 Pontiac St
La Crescenta, CA 91214

=====
From: Mike Muldoon
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Muldoon
1360 Ocala Rd Apt 127
Tallahassee, Florida 32304

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Nielsen
1881 Meadow Ct
Olivehurst, CA 95961

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Nguyen
17901 Point Loma St
Fountain Vly, CA 92708

=====
From: Mike Nite
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Nite
1808 E 6th St
Ada, Oklahoma 74820

=====
From: Mike Nite
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administration and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Nite
1808 E 6th St
Ada, Oklahoma 74820

=====
From: Mike Nix
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Nix
701 S 8th Ave
Yuma, Arizona 85364

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Pratt
33+pine+mountain+ct
Grand+marais, MN 55604

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Oliver
2331+jacksonville+dr
Henderson, TX 75654

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Brown
24505+jenkins+dr
Moreno+valley, CA 92553

=====
From: Mike Oden
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

Mike Oden
3716 63rd Dr.
Lubbock, TX 79413

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Mike Oden

=====
From: Mike O'Hare
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The

FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike O'Hare
16677 NE Russell St Apt 108
Portland, Oregon 97230

=====
From: Mike Omalley
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Omalley
PO Box 3509
Homer, Alaska 99603

=====
From: Mike O'Neill
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike O'Neill
1716 Wigglesworth Way
Woodbridge, Virginia 22191

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Orahood
417 N Elm St
Bellefontaine, OH 43311

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Prim
1509 N 46th Ave
Hollywood, FL 33021

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Michael S Pritchard
14700 April St
Accokeek, MD 20607

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Davidson
3930+butler+rd
Marlette, MI 48453

=====
From: Mike Pfeiff
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didnâ\200\231t regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along â\200\223 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Pfeiff
1615 Harrison St
Warsaw, Illinois 62379

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mike Piche
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1000 Oakley
Zip: 60123

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Pope
1103 Meadow Cir
Richardson, TX 75081

=====
From: Mike Post
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Post
150 W Maple St Apt 1718

Chicago, IL 60610-5430

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Prouse
8556+hiler+rd
Orange, TX 77632

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Smith
2905 W Diana Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85051

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Puryear
10007 Summerberry Ln
Tomball, TX 77375

=====
From: Mike Ranney
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Ranney
5315 University Ave
Saint Joseph, Missouri 64503

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Rariden
107 Lakeview Dr
Mcpherson, KS 67460

=====
From: Mike Reed
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling

new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Reed
8731 Vista View Dr
Dallas, Texas 75243

=====
From: Mike Reifer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Reifer

, 91750

=====
From: Mike Rivard
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Rivard
102 P.R. 7119
Frankston , Texas 75763

=====
From: mike roach
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike roach
1717 Opal Ave
Modesto, California 95350

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Robertson
6606+laughlin+dr
Missouri+city, TX 77489

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Rodriguez
4223+jacinto+dr
Fremont, CA 94536

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mike Rustad
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 465 E 6th Ave
Zip: 81301

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built todayâ\200\231s broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title IIâ\200\231s draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&Tâ\200\231s government-created monopoly. Theyâ\200\231re a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We donâ\200\231t buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling todayâ\200\231s bipartisan â\200\234Hands off the Netâ\200\235 approach. You canâ\200\231t have â\200\234just enough Title IIâ\200\235 any more than you can be â\200\234slightly pregnant.â\200\235

Title II would hurt startups most: they canâ\200\231t cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCCâ\200\231s powers over the Internet. Remember, you wonâ\200\231t be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you donâ\200\231t intend.

Yet, as youâ\200\231ve noted, Title II wouldnâ\200\231t even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban â\200\234fast lanes.â\200\235

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called â\200\234vigilant restraint.â\200\235 But remember Kennardâ\200\231s digital mantra, too: â\200\234First, do no harm.â\200\235 If you conclude that existing laws arenâ\200\231t adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCCâ\200\231s authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim â\200\224 whether thatâ\200\231s Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: mike sather
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike sather

, North Dakota 58201

=====
From: Mike Schneider
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Schneider
432 Joan Ave
Marissa, Illinois 62257

=====
From: Mike Schroeder
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Schroeder
N5544 Bengs Ct
Spooner, Wisconsin 54801

=====
From: mike scronce
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike scronce
119 Washington Cir
Wallace, North Carolina 28466

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Donna Cherry
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: 39 Dott Ave
Zip: 12205

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change\200\224and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Bob
22 Jennifer Ln
New Bedford, MA 02745

=====
From: Mike Shick
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: CC Establishes New Inbox for Open Internet Comments

Please!Â Discourage all forms of limiting internet restraints other than lewd and pornographic material.Â In almost all cases, we would rather see our internet be free from government restriction and entanglement.

Â

Please contact me if you have any questions about my concerns.

Â

Thank you.

Â

MIKE SHICK

805.610.9545

HYPERLINK "http://www.medesigns.us/"www.medesigns.us

HYPERLINK "http://www.shickencoopranch.com"www.shickencoopranch.com

Â

=====
From: MIKE SIMS
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIKE SIMS
64 Rocky Way Dr.
Stafford, Virginia 22554

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael long
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 6702 n van decar rd se port orchard wa
Zip: 98367

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Robinson
14+briar+dr
Hampton, VA 23661

=====
From: Mike Sorensen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Sorensen
7052 N Cherokee St
Eagle Mountain, Utah 84005

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Spaur
1827 E Riviera Dr
Columbia, MO 65202

=====
From: Mike Spear
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Spear
825 Fountain St
Woodbridge, Connecticut 06525

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Williams
8287 N Vassar Rd
Mount Morris, MI 48458

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Moser
N7470 Marshall Bluff Rd
Monticello, WI 53570

=====
From: Mike Stamer
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Stamer

, 60712-3602

=====
From: MIKE ST CLAIR
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MIKE ST CLAIR
1402 MAGNOLIA DR
AUGUSTA, Georgia 30909

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00

Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Stermetz
4734 W. Annette Cir
Glendale, AZ 85308

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Stricklin
PO Box 342
Lakeside, MT 59922

=====

From: mike sullivan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

mike sullivan
281 Ehilani St Apt A
Makawao, Hawaii 96768

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Sweeney
2802 E Tam O Shanter Ct
Ontario, CA 91761

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: MIKE SWEIGER
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 10005 Greenbrier Road
Zip: 55305

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Saliba
2239 Orange Ave
Escondido, CA 92029

=====
From: Mike Tay
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Tay
138 Maes Rd
Murphysboro, Illinois 62966

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Orlando
55 Nashua Rd
Windham, NH 03087

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Toumayan
2708+s+135th+east+ave
Tulsa, OK 74134

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's "help," and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Tucker
3107 Snug Harbour Ct
Katy, TX 77449

=====
From: MIKE UBANGY

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

MIKE UBANGY
1208 Cleveland
Pasadena, TX 77503

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
MIKE UBANGY

=====
From: Mike Valiquette
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The American people are watching a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that is not seeking to make the Internet better, but instead seeking to regulate it. The FCC could improve broadband delivery by auctioning off much-needed spectrum. Or it could get rid of some of its own burdensome rules that prevent companies from attracting investors and innovating. But instead of doing these things that would improve the Internet, the FCC is wasting its time in an obsessive drive to regulate. This tells the American people that once again, a Washington agency is working in a self-interested way to increase its own power at the expense of the free people it is meant to serve.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Valiquette
1010 Harbor Dr
Rock Falls, Illinois 61071

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Vincent
20333+aurora+nova+ct
Colfax, CA 95713

=====
From: Mike Wagaman
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Wagaman
4490 Rende Ln
Lake Worth, Florida 33461

=====

From: Mike Wallen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said:
"What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Wallen
417 N Norwalk

Mesa, Arizona 85205

=====
From: Mike Watts
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Watts
3091 Washington St
Placerville, California 95667

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Welker
509+11th+St+N
Mountain+Lake, MN 56159

=====
From: Mike Wende
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Docket number: 14-28 protecting an open internet

To Chairman Tom Wheeler and the FCC Commissionersâ\200\223â\200\223â\200\223â\200\223

Please do not allow the cable and other companies control Internet speed and access. We feel this is fundamentally about freedom of speech and the concept that all men are created equal. This should be regulated for the benefit of all Americans and not just those with the deepest pockets or we will turn into just another banana republic.

The Internet should be kept as a level playing field for big and small players, for individuals, organizations, and companies.

Please do not cave in to political forces driven by big money.

Thank you for your attention and time!

Mike Wende

Mike Wende

99019

=====
From: Mike Williams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal governmentâ\200\231s â\200\234help,â\200\235 and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of

unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Williams
909 Sunningdale Cir
Garland, Texas 75044

=====
From: Mike Williams
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: I support new net neutrality rules!

Sep 12, 2014

Chairman Tom Wheeler

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

We need real net neutrality. As a SierraRise supporter and member of the climate movement, I call on you to protect Internet users from monopolistic ISPs. Don't let companies censor, slow down, or block websites while requiring other sites to pay for faster service -- that's not the free and open Internet we deserve. Please stand up for all Internet users and our right to communicate!

Thank you,

Mike Williams
miller ave
Miller Ave
Mill Valley, CA 94941

=====
From: Mike Wilson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Wilson
5090 Central Sarasota Pkwy Apt 205
Sarasota, Florida 34238

=====
From: Mike Witz
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

It doesnâ\200\231t take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesnâ\200\231t matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Witz
PO Box 333
Sullivan, Maine 04664

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Nelson
308 Arnold Ave
Portland, ND 58274

=====
From: Mike Wolfersperger
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net Neutrality

Dear Chairman Federal Communications Commission,

My concern is simply that the Internet has become a major pathway for the dissemination of news and the primary access for many people to a wide range of information. Allowing corporate entities control of any aspect of this significant resource of the people beyond the content they choose to provide as a corporate entity should not be allowed. The Internet service providers (ISPs) should operate as a public utilities and should not have the power to restrict or control access in any way whatsoever.

Sincerely,
Mike Wolfersperger

245 Chama Sty. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87108

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Maher
108 Purple Leaf Pl
Carrboro, NC 27510

=====
From: Mike Wulkan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Wulkan
1728 Lee Ann Ct
San Luis Obispo, California 93401

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Boronda
218 Humphrey Ln
Grants Pass, OR 97527

=====
From: mike yanchulis
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

mike yanchulis
374 Waterman Rd
Laceyville, PA 18623

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Brenner
1615b+garden+st
Santa+barbara, CA 93101

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Moreno
8004+appomattox+dr
Austin, TX 78745

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Petrucci
10138 Kingsbridge Ave
Tampa, FL 33626

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Parsons
3414 W 59th St
Cleveland, OH 44102

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

At every turn, the Congress and the Courts have told the Federal Communications Commission to cease and desist in its efforts to regulate the Internet. Rather than heed these warnings, the Commission is doubling down, threatening to place the most onerous regulations imaginable on the Internet, subjecting it to 1930s-style regulations meant for telephone monopolies. The Internet is not a monopoly or a public utility. The Internet is a massive network of networks that has arisen, not by government fiat, but through free, spontaneous arrangements by investors, engineers, businesses and the consumers they serve. The FCC should heed the sober warnings of the two branches of government that have instructed it to cease and desist in this reckless, destructive effort to regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Vincent Mizell
112 Parker Ln
Elizabeth Cty, NC 27909

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Willmore
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 1739 Coffee rd. Westminster, SC
Zip: 29693

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called vigilant restraint. But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: First, do no harm. If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Zaw
1008 Cassity St
Socorro, NM 87801

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mahmoud Zahrieh
6822+s+29th+ln
Phoenix, AZ 85041

=====
From: Mike Zoto
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the nuclear option, because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mike Zoto
64 Sequoia Dr

Newtown, Pennsylvania 18940

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mikhail Gorokhovskiy
3000+royal+hills+dr+se+apt+26d
Renton, WA 98058

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The courts have twice struck down the FCC's attempts to place the Internet under political control. If the FCC attempts this irresponsible action for the third time, Congress should cut off its funding, shut it down, and assign its legitimate responsibilities to other, more responsible agencies. The American people can and will defend ourselves against power-hungry bureaucrats like the IRS and the FCC.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Rodney Brown
14053 Quail Creek Ln

New Orleans, LA 70128

=====
From: Mikie Mikel
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mikie Mikel
PO Box 207
Sturgeon, Missouri 65284

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Coachman
5061 Cedar Lawn Way
Las Vegas, NV 89130

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: michael Johnston
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 60 Hillcrest Dr
Zip: 89509

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michelle Heng
318+n+spring+st
Franklin+grv, IL 61031

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Mazzolajr
4999 Sw 7th Ct
Margate, FL 33068

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Schweedler
Po Box 581
Mountlake Ter, WA 98043

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Michael Lewis
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 5757 S. Garner Ct.
Zip: 84118

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please donâ\200\231t break the Internet. Donâ\200\231t abandon the â\200\234Hands off the â\200\230Netâ\200\235 approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible

the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Mikolai Wisniewski
Email: xxxxx@xxxxx.xxx
Address: P.O. box 16473
Zip: 97292

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be a little pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government

control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mike Ward
Po Box 1411
Williamsburg, KY 40769

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Hartsell
Po Box 1605
Albemarle, NC 28002

=====
From: Milagros Sanchez
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job â\200\223 providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service â\200\223 it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCCâ\200\231s dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milagros Sanchez
105 Rutledge Dr
Calhoun, Georgia 30701

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milaly Tokhi
2458 Silveria Way
Antioch, CA 94531

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milan Cassella
7800 Topanga Canyon Blvd Apt 325
Canoga Park, CA 91304

=====
From: Milano Pearson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milano Pearson
6770 Springpark Ave Apt 112
Los Angeles, California 90056

=====
From: Milan Urukalo
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Americans have been getting faster and faster Internet speeds because of competition in the free economy, not because of anything the government has done. The Internet does not need the federal government's help, and neither the American people nor their elected representatives are asking for the federal government to place political controls over the Internet. The people calling for government control over the Internet are a tiny minority of far-left political activists, and the FCC knows it. Any effort by the FCC to regulate the Internet will be seen by the vast majority of the American people for what it is -- another lawless Obama Administration power grab.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milan Urukalo
111 Blue Lake Ct
Lakeway, Texas 78734

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an "independent agency," and it is no longer an "expert agency." If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Desmond Martin
400 Talon Dr Apt 2c
Jacksonville, NC 28546

=====
From: Mildred Anderson
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Anderson
13330 Irvine Blvd
Oak Park, Michigan 48237

=====
From: Mildred Eselin
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Eselin
6038A Clark Road 122
Paradise, California 95969

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job of providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Mildred Bynaum
711 S 16th St
Temple, TX 76501

=====
From: Mildred James
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not a public utility and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred James
4510 27th St
Lubbock, Texas 79410

From: Mildred Johnivan
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

If the FCC is taking over the Internet to serve President Obama's political agenda, then it is no longer an independent agency, and it is no longer an expert agency. If the FCC has merely become a political extension of Barack Obama's White House, then it is in violation of the law that created it and it should be shut down. The Courts and the Congress have told the FCC that it is not authorized to regulate the Internet. If the FCC ignores the Courts and the Congress, it can and should suffer the consequences.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Johnivan
293 W Tacoma St
Clawson, Michigan 48017

=====
From: Mildred Otieno
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet has always been a solution in search of a problem. By trying for a third time to regulate the Internet, the FCC is demonstrating that it is no longer acting in the interests of the American people. Instead of doing its real job - providing more spectrum for wireless users or deregulating wireline telephone service - it is trying to move backward in time to 1930s-era phone regulation. If the FCC drags 2014 technology back into 1930s regulations, the Internet will suffer, and so will the American people. Do not regulate the Internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Otieno
2005 Robyn Rd
Springdale, Arkansas 72762

=====
From: Mildred Schinlever
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Since the internet became an everyday usable resource to people all over the world, it has grown and expanded in every way. People have been able to use it to express creativity, build businesses, share media, and even connect with people they would have never gotten an opportunity to meet otherwise. The notion that the internet is broken and needs repair is simply not true. The internet is alive, vibrant and growing. Stop trying to govern what doesn't need to be governed.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Schinlever
200 Sussex K
West Palm Beach, Florida 33417

=====
From: Mildred Simpkins
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Simpkins
220 W. Sixth St.
Imlay City, Michigan 48444

=====
From: Mildred Weston
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Weston
190 Steep Lane
Russellville, Arkansas 72802

=====
From: Mildred Willadsen
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Mildred Willadsen
849 CR 1612
Mt. Pleasant, Texas 75455

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Charmaine Resolme
7832+bloomfield+rd
San+diego, CA 92114

=====
From: Miles Boucher
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Net Regulation!

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

Over the past two decades, the Internet has flourished and revolutionized our lives precisely because it has remained free of government overregulation. Recently, however, Obama's Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposed new rules that could reclassify broadband Internet as a monopoly-era plain old telephone service of decades past (aka common carrier telecommunications service) under Title II of the Communications Act.

Simply put, the federal government micromanaging the Internet is a dangerous scheme, one that Congress must halt and the FCC must abandon. As a concerned citizen, I urge you to do everything in your power to stop any and all efforts by the FCC to reclassify broadband Internet under Title II of the Communications Act.

Sincerely,

Miles Boucher
908 N Sherman Ave
Liberal, KS 67901

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers. It's just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Amanda Carlin
1350 W Melrose St
Boise, ID 83706

=====
From: miles drake
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Comment on Proceeding 14-28

miles drake
27 hanford street
columbus, OH 43206

September 12, 2014

Dear Tom Wheeler,

Dear Chairman Wheeler,

The internet has experienced unfettered growth and contributed to unprecedented advancements in technology largely because of the current "hands off" regulatory approach. That is why I am writing to express my opposition to the so-called "net neutrality" rule, which would replace the relative freedom of today's internet with new, heavy-handed federal regulations.

Imposing "net neutrality" and Title II regulations will only create an atmosphere that creates more government-imposed barriers to broadband investment and innovation. These misguided rules will also make it harder for startups to enter the market and slow broadband deployment. Moreover, these proposed regulations will give the federal bureaucracy unparalleled and unprecedented power over the Internet.

In short, these proposed "net neutrality" rules will be bad for competition, bad for consumers, and harm America's digital economy.

I urge you to leave the internet alone and say no to Title II and so-called "net neutrality."

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
miles drake

=====
From: Miles Dwayne
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The internet cannot be governed as a public utility without being slowed by bureaucratic inertia. We are a country built on principles of free people and free markets, and nothing epitomizes that like the Internet. The Internet is already free and open, for the simple reason that competition between providers forces it to be free and open. That's what customers want. There is no need for the government to intervene to create something that already exists. The unregulated Internet already helps promote entrepreneurship, innovation, and freedom of speech. Let the free economy do what it does best, and stop trying to regulate the Internet!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Miles Dwayne
800 S Schumaker Dr Apt 3A
Salisbury, Maryland 21804

=====
From: miles waldron
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: save the internet

Dear Sirs,

Maintaining the current open model of the internet is of vital importance. The pay for access internet model, with its slow lanes and fast lanes, ironically named "net neutrality", will destroy the internet.

If "net neutrality" is allowed, big business will control access to information. Big business will use this control to strangle free speech and promote it's capitalistic agenda. It should be clear from the disastrous health care situation that a capitalistic agenda is exactly the wrong model for certain sectors, and the internet is certainly included here.

America is built on principles of individual freedoms. The free exchange of information is vital for individuals to research and to communicate and to learn and to formulate their own ideas and opinions. An open internet is vital to American independence and freedom.

Please save the internet,
Miles Waldron

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx

Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Richard Nowlin
93 Lawton Ave
Stamford, CT 06907

=====
From: Milienne Pierre
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Every infrastructure system in this country other than broadband Internet is decrepit. Water, sewer, power, road and bridges. All in a state of disrepair, dependent on taxpayers, and under the strict control of government regulators. Internet, on the other hand, is dynamic, innovative, and fueled by billions of dollars in private investment. Don't destroy what works and turn it into just another slow-moving government-controlled mess.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milienne Pierre
2035 19th Ave SW
Vero Beach, Florida 32962

=====
From: Milikie Qeriqi
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milikie Qeriqi
3023 Maple Valley Dr Apt 102
Madison, Wisconsin 53719

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: c. H. Koki
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: 7231 S Eastern Ave., LV, NV
Zip: 89119

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen

Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban fast lanes.

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

In the 2010 election, all 95 congressional candidates who signed Progressive Change Campaign Committee's pledge to regulate the Internet lost their elections. That's right, every single candidate who pledged to regulate the Internet was defeated by voters. In regulating the Internet, the FCC is clearly ignoring the will of the American people, the will of the Congress, and the judgment of the Courts. The dangerous legal waters this Administrations and the FCC are entering will end in a justifiable political backlash against those who overstepped their authority in an attempt to wield the powers of the federal government against those who they were sworn to serve. If the FCC places these extreme federal regulations on the Internet in the face of Congressional and judicial opposition, it will harm the Internet and devastate its own reputation.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Fermina Laygui
90952 Travis Ln
Coos Bay, OR 97420

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along Ã¢â\202-â\200\234 no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Milissa Garrido
8647 Oconnor Cres
Norfolk, VA 23503

=====
From: milissa hannibal
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCCâ\200\231s crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before theyâ\200\231re enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milissa Hannibal
21 Alldyth Ave
Reisterstown, Maryland 21136

From: MILISSA PINA
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

It doesn't take much to realize that this debate over net neutrality - or worse, turning the Internet into a public utility - is simply another attempt by the federal government to take control of another sector of the economy. Whether for power or tax revenue it doesn't matter, stop trying to fix things that are not broken, and leave the American people and the Internet alone!

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

MILISSA PINA
303 S Joy St
Corona, California 92879

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Reducing the Internet to a public utility is known on Wall Street as the "nuclear option," because it would devastate private investment with the force of an atomic bomb. And when private investment dries up, it's only a matter of time before taxpayers will be forced to pick up the tab. Why would we possibly go down that path?

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cory Kaltreider
1458+graydon+rd
Seven+valleys, PA 17360

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Open Internet Reply Comment

Name: Laura Seaver
Email: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Address: PO Box 222
Zip: 65633

Dear Chairman Wheeler, please don't break the Internet. Don't abandon the "Hands off the Net" approach begun under President Clinton, which unleashed staggering innovation. That bipartisan approach made possible the $01.03 trillion dollars of private investment that built today's broadband networks. Imposing Title II would hurt all Americans by slowing broadband deployment and creating a cloud of uncertainty over all Internet services.

Title II's draconian rules were designed in the 1930s for AT&T's government-created monopoly. They're a poor fit for the Internet. FCC Chairmen Bill Kennard (D, 1997-2001) and Michael Powell (R, 2001-2005) knew that. So they wisely drew a clear, bright line between Title II and the Internet. We don't buy claims that the FCC can maintain this firewall if it re-opens Title II. Nor do we trust that the FCC can quickly whittle Title II into something resembling today's bipartisan "Hands off the Net" approach. You can't have just enough Title II any more than you can be slightly pregnant.

Title II would hurt startups most: they can't cope with regulation as easily as big companies. Title II would protect incumbent broadband companies from new entrants like Google Fiber. Title II would hurt the underserved by slowing deployment and upgrades in minority and rural communities. And Title II would vastly increase the FCC's powers over the Internet. Remember, you won't be Chairman forever, and the powers you claim over the Internet today could be used to control it in ways you don't intend.

Yet, as you've noted, Title II wouldn't even allow the FCC to do what its proponents demand: ban "fast lanes."

We urge you to carefully focus regulation on real problems, what Chairman Kennard called "vigilant restraint." But remember Kennard's digital mantra, too: "First, do no harm." If you conclude that existing laws aren't adequate to protect consumers, you should ask Congress for legislation that clearly specifies the boundaries of the FCC's authority. No government agency should be trusted with a blank check to regulate the Internet at whim whether that's Title II or the vast powers the FCC has claimed under Section 706 to do anything it thinks will promote broadband.

Most of all, we want continually better, faster broadband and more competition. Instead of imposing Title II, we urge you to identify regulatory barriers at all levels of government that could be removed to help existing companies keep upgrading their networks, but also help Google Fiber, wireless providers and other private companies to compete.

Competition, not endless litigation and political bickering over Title II, should be your legacy.

=====
From: Milkweed Augustine
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Do Not Regulate the Internet

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted.

If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

A small fringe of the extremist left has been demanding a government takeover of the Internet for over ten years, but cannot point to any actual misbehavior that would justify such a takeover. When a government agency like the FCC follows such extremists, acting without evidence, and increasing its own power under imaginary or false pretenses, then the people's representatives in Congress must cut off its funding and place its necessary duties in the hands of agencies that will act responsibly. All legislative powers reside in the Congress of the United States. The FCC knows full well that the 1996 Communications Act was a deregulatory bill. But in its zeal to ignore the letter and spirit of that law, and place severe regulations on the Internet, the FCC is usurping the legislative powers of the Congress by attempting to rewrite the laws passed by Congress. Such shocking disregard of the will of Congress will not stand.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth.

Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,

Milkweed Augustine
5 Derry Park Dr Apt 22
Middleboro, Massachusetts 02346

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet would be a job killer. All those who are employed as tech support, companies that make and deploy servers, routers, coax and fiber-optic cable will suffer job losses if the FCC chases billions of dollars of investments away by regulating Internet services as if they were a public utility. Every time Washington bureaucrats have grabbed massive new powers for themselves, they have created economic and human wreckage in their wake. Obamacare regulations on the healthcare system have cost millions of Americans their health insurance, and raised the cost of insurance and deductibles to millions more. Dodd-Frank financial regulations have shuttered smaller banks and dried up loans to small businesses that create jobs. And the EPA's draconian rules have driven up electricity prices for millions of Americans. Now the FCC is considering massive new regulations on the Internet, and this power grab threatens to cost the American people dearly as well.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Cesare Reyneri
264th+st+apt+06
Los+altos, CA 94022

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Before our government can handcuff a citizen, it must have some reasonable evidence that they have done something wrong. Before the FCC places regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers, shouldn't the government present evidence that they have actually done something wrong? If the police were to handcuff someone because they might, theoretically, maybe, kind of do something wrong someday, there would be justifiable outrage. Such is the case with the FCC's attempt to place regulatory handcuffs on Internet providers just in case they might do something wrong someday. The FCC's rulemaking in the absence of any actual problem, any actual misbehavior on the part of Internet providers, or any consumer harm is beneath the dignity of an expert agency.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Sean Millard
2118 Collet Quarry Dr
Rocklin, CA 95765

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is not broken, and does not need to be fixed. Left-wing extremists have been crying wolf for the past decade about the harm to the Internet if the Federal government didn't regulate it. Not only were they wrong, but the Internet has exploded with innovation. Do not regulate the Internet. The best way to keep it open and free is what has kept it open and free all along - no government intervention.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Michael Love
16331+merryfield+rd
Chilhowie, VA 24319

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Net neutrality.

Just another government attempt to control the regulatory process through another government regulatory agency, you! This is another power grab to promote crony capitalism. The big players aren't making enough money already? I never understood why Business people would support the Democrats and the ever-growing leviathan government regulatory process. It's obvious to see now. They receive preferential treatment at the peril of The rest of us. Shame on you for even considering this legislation.

Sent from my iPhone

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The FCC is considering monopoly utility regulations on the Internet, even though the Internet is not a monopoly or a utility. The FCC itself argued before the US Supreme Court that Internet services are unregulated information services, not a regulated telephone service. And what events, or what new evidence does the FCC have to justify this about-face? None whatsoever. The FCC's sudden change of mind in the absence of any real evidence or any clear problem is an arbitrary power grab, plain and simple to any reasonable person. By taking such reckless actions to gain control over the Internet, the FCC is ironically presenting a powerful argument that it has become largely irrelevant in the present world of competitive data services. As Congress reconsiders telecommunications in the coming years, it will no doubt consider what to do with the very expensive, largely irrelevant, and power-hungry agency that the FCC has sadly become.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Tyrone Miller
Po Box 1282
Shelby, MS 38774

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Regulating the Internet is the first step in regulating the people who use it. We are a free people, and the FCC needs to leave us alone. If the FCC regulates the Internet after Congress and the courts have told it not to, it will have proven itself to be an unaccountable agency, and the Congress should move to severely limit its powers and budget.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Stephen Miller
12067 Alta Carmel Ct Unit 74
San Diego, CA 92128

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will

changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The FCC's attempts to regulate the Internet have a well-deserved losing record. Once again the FCC is moving to regulate the Internet to fix a nonexistent problem. The FCC has been given warnings by Congress and the Courts. If the FCC regulates the Internet, it will seriously degrade the Internet we have, and will delay or prevent the improvements in speed and services we have almost come to take for granted.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Justin Miller
858 Sunhaven Dr
Medina, OH 44256

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will
changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The Internet is not a "public utility" and never will be. America has led the world with competitive Internet services developed in a free market for information services. Competition has driven businesses to offer faster and better services. If the FCC regulates the Internet as if it were a public utility this competition will be diminished. Government controls will never be as beneficial as competition. Investors have fled regulated telecommunications services to invest in the unregulated sectors of the industry. Government regulation of Internet services would chase investment out of Internet service providers, and that would be disastrous for any and all who use the internet.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Jesse Miller
615 19th St
Washougal, WA 98671

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

The ideological leader of the angry liberals calling for you to reduce the Internet to a public utility is Robert McChesney, the avowed Marxist founder of the socialist group Free Press. In an interview with SocialistProject.ca, McChesney said: "What we want to have in the U.S. and in every society is an Internet that is not private property, but a public utility...At the moment, the battle over network neutrality is not to completely eliminate the telephone and cable companies. We are not at that point yet. But the ultimate goal is to get rid of the media capitalists in the phone and cable companies and to divest them from control." In a country of over 300 million people, even an extremist like McChesney can find, perhaps, millions of followers. But you should know better than to listen to them.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Bonnie Miller
3973 S 400 E # A
Salt Lake Cty, UT 84107

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will changeâ\200\224and not for the better.

Millions of liberal fools demanding you reduce the Internet to a public utility don't give that idea any actual merit. Many of these organizations are openly socialist and see destroying a major sector of the U.S. economy as a good thing in itself. Others are simply being swept up in sloganeering from comedians. And the same scare stories have been told for ten years Â¢â\202-â\200\234 that unless you regulate, big bad phone and cable companies will destroy the Internet. Never happened and never will, because of competition. But a powerful government regulator really could create mischief, and there would be no place else to turn. Don't ruin a good thing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulationâ\200\224just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Charlene Miller
1861 N Belleview Pl
Indianapolis, IN 46222

=====

From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

Placing monopoly utility regulations on the competitive services of the Internet will send the crown jewel of the US economy into an economic tailspin. Instead of offering users new products and faster speeds, Internet providers will pour their energy into asking the federal government for permission to do anything from changing rates to using new technology. The Internet is not a monopoly. And it is not a utility. And the federal government should keep away from it and let it, and the Americans who use it, remain free of government control and coercion.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Ben Miller
179 Crossrail Rd
Mooresville, NC 28115

=====
From: xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

The Internet is the biggest economic, intellectual, and artistic success story of the century, and it rose up because of free people, not stifling government. The federal government needs to keep its hands off the Internet. It is not broken, and it does not need to be fixed. It is the federal government, not the Internet, that is broken, and in need of fixing.

Like many Americans, I believe that the internet should remain free of government control and unnecessary regulation just as it has for the last twenty years of unprecedented growth. Please stop the FCC's dangerous new regulations, and protect the future of internet freedom here in America.

Sincerely,
Robert Tabb
19723 Oak Green Ct
Humble, TX 77346

=====

From: miller- xxxx@xxxx.xxx
Date: 09/12/2014 00:00:00
Subject: Stop Internet Regulation

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

As an American citizen, I wanted to voice my opposition to the FCC's crippling new regulations that would put federal bureaucrats in charge of internet freedom, and urge you to stop these regulations before they're enacted. If the federal government goes through these plans to regulate the internet, I know that the internet will change and not for the better.

